APPROPRIATION IS ADEQUATE ANSWER TO ARMY AIR NEEDS

Twenty Six Millions Made Available For Air Force

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The long fight for an adequate American air force appeared won today with congress appropriating $26,808,000 for army aviation in the coming fiscal year.

This item, featured the war department appropriation bill, totaling $400,000,000, which went to conference today to iron out differences between the house and senate. Both branches, however, have agreed upon the necessity for developing a great air force to protect the United States from its potential enemies in the future.

The appropriation of millions of dollars for new airplanes and for the training of army aviators was in sharp contrast to the meager fund given this branch of the national defense in previous years. The change represented a victory for Colonel "Billy" Mitchell, former "Stormy Petrel" of the army air service, who dared a court-martial two years ago to arouse the American people to the need for a greater air service.

The house treated army aviation with extreme liberality but the senate went a little further. In addition to approving a $24,000,000 house appropriation, the senate set aside two funds, totalling $2,17,8000 already appropriated, to be used by army aviation. Both branches also authorized the chief of the air corps to enter contracts for $5,000,000 worth of new airplanes for delivery in 1930. This made a grand total of nearly $32,000,000 to be spent for aviation.

The new liberality can best be illustrated by the fact that a few years ago, the appropriation for new airplanes was only $45,000. In the new bill, the house appropriated $11,257,445 to pay for the new aircraft, while the senate approved this and set aside another $1,160,000 for new bombardment planes.

Both house and senate likewise agreed upon a $2,200,000 fund for "experimental and research work with airplanes or lighter-than-air craft and their equipment."

The bill probably will be enacted finally by Wednesday or Thursday and sent to the White House for the president's signature.

CINCINNATI TRAIN SHED COLLAPSES

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 28.—Two passenger trains were caught under a mass of timber and steel when the west end of the Union Terminal depot train shed collapsed here today.

Both trains were pulling out of the depot, and the engines and bag gage cars of the two were covered with debris, according to the early report. Fire engines were rushed to the scene and railroad crews were also set to work immediately to clear the tracks. There was no fire and first reports did not indicate whether any persons were injured.

PLASTIC SURGEON SUED FOR $200,000

CHICAGO., Feb. 28.—Praecipe in a $200,000 damage suit, filed by Miss Sadie Holland, 30-year-old stenographer, against Dr. Henry J. Schierson, plastic surgeon, was on file in circuit court today.

Miss Holland charges that both her legs had to be amputated above the knees as the result of an unsuccessful operation which was performed for the purpose of straightening them.

ONE MURDERED

CLEVELAND Feb. 28.—Samuel Weiss, 33, Cleveland, was shot and killed here early today by two unidentified gunmen.

Police Sergeant John McGraw, investigating, expressed the opinion that the killing was the result of a bootleg feud. Two suspects were being held.

CHURCHMEN LAUNCH CAMPAIGN TO FORCE DRY PARTY PLANKS

Challenge Parties To Put Enforcement Plans On Record

"Put prohibition into party platforms!"

Nearly a hundred churchmen-prohibitionists got behind the project today at a mass meeting at the Mayflower Hotel. Almost every reform organization in the country was represented at the meeting, and dozens of papers and addresses were read, all supporting the plan to force the two major parties to definitely go on record in their party platforms in favor of prohibition "as is" or in favor of more drastic enforcement methods.

Three minute speeches were made by representatives of the Alcohol Information Committee, the Anti-Soloon League, Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, Association In Support of National Prohibition, Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, W. C. T. U., Flying Squadron, National Reform Association, Scientific Temperance Federation, National Temperance Society, International Reform Federation, Prohibition National Committee, Presbyterian Temperance Commission, Baptist Social Service Commission, National Temperance Society, Universalist Department of Social Service, Catholic Clergy Prohibition League, Presbyterian Welfare Board, National Civic League, Christian Endeavor Society, Intercollegiate Prohibition Society, National Sons of Temperance, and a host of others.

"In order that it may be fairly tested, enforcement must be entrusted to those who believe in it," said a message from Bishop William T. Manning, New York.

"Because of the vast appointive power of the president," said Mrs. Ella A. Boole, head of the W. C. T. U., "it is especially important he be a man who sincerely desires to secure for the country the full benefit of this great and good law."

CONVICT YOUTH FOR MURDERING GIRL

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28—Anthony Yontez, 19, today faced life imprisonment for the slaying of his sweetheart, Alice Preskar, 19, here January 6, last.

A jury of seven men and five women returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder against the youth late last night, but recommended mercy. Sentence was to be pronounced today.

NEW STRIKE LOOMS

UNION LEADERS SAY 350,000 MINERS TO QUIT WORK APRIL 1

Parts Of Ohio Are Affected By New Walk-Out Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A new strike of 350,000 union miners in twelve states is threatened on April 1, United Mine Workers officials reported today to the special senate coal committee.

After nearly a week's investigation in Pennsylvania fields, the committee, headed by Senator Gooding (R) of Idaho, returned to Washington today to prepare a report for the Interstate Commerce Committee.

States which will be affected by the threatened walk-out include Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, Texas, Ohio, and northern West Virginia. In these sections some union operators have been working under temporary wage agreements. All efforts thus far to negotiate a settlement have failed, union officials declared.

At present about 138,000 men are on strike.

The committee collected about 200 pages of testimony on its trip. Instead of a written report, the sub-committee will relate orally to the full committee its experiences in the mine camps. A meeting was called for Thursday. The general investigation by the full committee probably will get under way next week.

In the committee's opinion some legislative remedy must be found to relieve the present strike conditions or unrest will spread to other industries, including the railroads, and affect thousands of persons. No program has been mapped out but a bill calling for federal supervision of the coal industry will be presented by one or two of the committee members. Sen. Wheeler (D) of Montana already has introduced a bill to nationalize the mines.

The greatest ill of the industry, the committee believes, is overproduction and an oversupply of miners.

The committee was strong in its denunciation of the alleged misuse of injunctions in labor disputes. Senator Gooding characterized as "outrageous" the injunction which forbids strikers to congregate in the little church yard at Rossiter, Pa., to sing hymns. The senate judiciary committee is now holding hearings on the Shipstead bill to curb the injunctve power of the federal courts.

Activities of alleged communists among striking coal miners aroused Senator Gooding.

"We must get the I. W. W. by the throat and choke it to death," he declared. "If we don't the gutters of our streets will run knee deep with blood. The industrial leaders of the country should fight this menace."

Philip Murray, vice president of the Mine Workers, told the committee "the communists believe they can dominate the American labor movement if they can get control of the United Mine Workers, the largest single union in the country."

MELLON NEARS 73

WASHINGTON. Feb. 28—A man is not so old at seventy-two.

One of the administrations "young men"—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who next month will celebrate his seventy-third birthday, made this remark today. He was commenting on the fact that the senate is holding up confirmation of Representative Green (R) of Iowa, as a member of the court of claims because he is two years over the seventy year retirement age for judges.

"Seventy-two is not very old," Mellon said.

COMPROMISE ON FLOOD CONTROL APPEARS POSSIBLE IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—Four days of intensive efforts by President Coolidge and congressional leaders to work out a compromise in the Mississippi River flood control fight began to bear fruit today.

The house flood control committee, will take the first step by re-writing the bill which it voted out of committee after four months of hearings.

Another bill was being framed by house administration leaders in collaboration with the war department and senate Republicans.

"There is a yielding on the part of everybody," said Rep. Cox (D) of Georgia, a member of the house flood control committee.

Rep. Reid (R) of Illinois, chairman of the committee, was reticent about the proposed new bill. He has indicated a willingness to compromise on every point but the local contribution plan.

Rep. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican house leader, declared that satisfactory progress is being made in the compromise negotiations. He indicated that administration leaders would support a bill which provides that the work shall be carried on while the question of distribution of costs is being considered. This proposal, originated by Rep. Madden (R) of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, was endorsed by President Coolidge.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS MEET TO DISCUSS WILLIS BATTLE PLANS

Twenty Party Chiefs Consult With Carmi Thompson —Drys Said To Favor Ohio Senator

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 28.—Plans for the pre-primary campaign to be waged on behalf of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis for the Republican presidential nomination are scheduled to be discussed at a conference at Willis' state headquarters here this afternoon between Col. Carmi A. Thompson, campaign manager for Willis, and about twenty Ohio Republican leaders from various sections of the state.

Special attention will be given, it was stated, to activities looking to the election, at the statewide presidential primaries on April 24, of Willis candidates for delegates and alternates to the Republican national convention.

Announcement was made at the offices of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown that the names of Hoover and Willis candidates for delegates and alternates will be arranged alternately in the same column on the G. O. P. presidential primary ballots. The name of each candidate will be accompanied by his or her, first and second choices for the presidential nomination, it was said.

Although officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League were of the opinion that the league will take no official action, "for the present, at least," relative to the Hoover and Willis presidential candidacies publicity was given here today to the declaration by Willis supporters that "the drys are uniting in their support of Willis."

These supporters of Willis asserted that the drys were backing Willis because: "Senator Willis is tried and true and has been fighting under the dry banner all during his public life; Secretary Hoover has little, are no, past record along this line, and Hoover leaders are 'wet.'

WOMAN, FOUR CHILDREN DIE

Mother Trapped In Rescue Attempt

QUEBEC, Feb. 28.— Mrs. Raoul Gerneau and four of her ten children were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home at Charlesbourg, a suburb.

Mrs. Gerneau had rescued six of the children and gone back into the flaming house to save the others when she was trapped. The father, a contractor, was away at work at the time of the tragedy.

FOILED IN ATTEMPT TO PRESENT GIFTS

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—Using the one English sentence she has learned unforgetaibly, Mme. Germaine Gosselin who for a week has tried in vain to present gifts she brought from France to Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh today observed: "America—she is a difficult country."

Among the articles Mme. Gosselin has are a book autographed by several widely known Frenchmen, a tapestry illustrating Lindbergh's exploit and a painting of the flier.

At every turn Mrs. Gosselin has been told the same thing—get credentials. She has none.

Mrs. Gosselin has called at Mrs. Lindbergh's home three times only to find her away.

John Lode, mayor of Detroit, and Lindbergh's uncle, informed Mrs. Gosselin he would be glad to see her "after she has seen Mrs. Lindbergh."

Mrs. Lindbergh is now in Boston.

KILLED BY GUNSHOT

ST. MARYS, O., Feb. 28.—Paul H. Kohler, science teacher is dead, in Memorial Hospital here, having succumbed to an abdominal wound sustained from the accidental discharge of a shotgun.

MOTHER OF JACKIE COOGAN IN SCANDAL

Claiming $750,000 in damages, Mrs. Corabel Bernstein brought action against Mrs. Lilian Coogan, mother of Jackie Coogan, juvenile star, alleging alienation of the affections of her husband, Arthur Bernstein, business manager of the Jackie Coogan Picture Corporation.

At the same time, Mrs. Bernstein, through her attorney, Charles W. Cradick, filed suit against her husband for divorce, charging him with indiscreet friendliness with Mrs. Coogan and cruelty toward herself.

The divorce complaint states that Bernstein's salary is $3,000 a week and lists community property totaling $250,000. It asks $1,000 alimony per month and $10,000 in attorney's fees.

RHAPSODY DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The secret of why J. J. Hourahan, of Edneyville, N. C., killed himself probably will be buried with him.

Whether he was emotionally overcome with the haunting melody of Liszt's "Second Rhapsody" or whether there were other reasons probably will never be learned.

Hourahan stabbed himself five times with a pocket knife last night in Keith's theater, while the audience sat enthralled with the strains of the Rhapsody.

DIRIGIBLE MOORED SAFELY AFTER LONG 2,200 MILE FLIGHT

Scheduled To Re-Fuel From Aircraft Carrier Patoka

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 28. — The huge U. S. navy dirigible Los Angeles presented a magnificent sight at France Flying Field here today, perched at the top of a mast erected especially for her coming. The dirigible was moored safely at 10:25 last night upon the completion of her longest non-stop flight since she crossed the ocean from Germany.

The ship left her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:55 o'clock Sunday morning. She made the 2,200 mile flight in thirty-nine hours and thirty minutes, averaging slightly less than sixty miles an hour.

Weather conditions were favorable for the expected departure today of the ship for Guantanamo Bay, where it will refuel from the aircraft carrier Patoka.

Commander Rosendahl said that he expected the dirigible would start for the Patoka early today, possibly at eight o'clock. He said manouvers with the mother ship might be attempted.

The Los Angeles was sighted over Colon at 9:30 p. m. She made her way majestically toward the flying field. Her silver-sheened sides gleamed brightly as she entered the flood of light directed skyward by huge searchlights at the field.

Her mooring was effected after manouvering of about a half an hour without undue trouble. Three hundred soldiers helped anchor the ship.

The work of Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and officers and men of the crew in handling the ship was accorded high praise from all sides.

Naval officials hailed the dirigible's feat as a practical demonstration of the feasibility of using dirigibles for long distance flights.

The portable mooring mast to which the ship was anchored was constructed in the United States under the direction of Commander Rosendahl and was shipped to the canal zone about two weeks ago.

The dirigible's successful flight was originally planned three years ago but was abandoned at that time because of a shortage of helium gas.

The ship performed up to expectations in every way, although Commander Rosendahl declared after the landing that weather conditions had not proved as favorable as had been expected. The inclement weather encountered by the ship was given as the reason for its tardy arrival. It had been expected at six p. m.

A huge throng had collected at the field when the anchorage was made. Roads leading to the field were jammed with vehicles of every description.

Ground lights on the field and red lights atop the hangars and houses on the field intermingled to add to the glamour of the scene.

EXAMINE FLIVVER PLANE FOR DEFECTS

DETROIT, Feb. 28—The "flivver" plane in which Harry Brooks, 25-year-old aviator lost his life in a crash at Melbourne, Fla., will be subjected to searching inspection by aircraft experts of the Ford Motor Company in the hope of determining what caused the tragic accident, it was learned today.

Brooks was the only member of the Ford flying staff ever allowed to fly the miniature craft and as a result other pilots of the company are not familiar with its operation.

Whether the accident to Brooks will cause the Ford Company to abandon plans believed to be under way to offer the "flivver" planes for sale to the public could not be learned.

Henry Ford, who is now in Fort Myers, Fla., will decide the future policy of the company in regards to the "flivver" planes, officials here said.

Central Press telephoto of Charles "Limpy" Cleaver, under arrest at Chicago with five others charged with being a leader of the gang of seven who dynamited the mail car of a Grand Trunk train at Evergreen Park and escaped with $133,000. Police say that they have a complete confession from Cleaver. He tried to evade the camera.

FAILURE OF POLICE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR CRIME SUCCESS

Crime Commission's Report Blames Lack Of Intelligence

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Inefficiency of the police, due to the "lack of average intelligence," is blamed for this country's "notorious crime record," in a report of the National Crime Commission made public today.

The report was made by the committee on inefficiency of police and courts. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, is chairman of the committee.

The report admits that courts and parole boards also have been at fault, "but," it adds, "the most startling thing is the small number of criminals caught by the police."

Crime, the report said, would seem to be the safest business in which one could engage. The luckless individual who is arrested, it was said, must attribute his misfortune "to an act of God, as he would in case of disastrous storm, shipwreck, or earthquake."

Only two per cent of thieves are apprehended in Cleveland and St. Louis. Buffalo arrests men only in three per cent of its robberies. New York, in 1925 made arrests in twenty per cent of its fellonies.

Further it was pointed out, the courts convict only a portion of the men brought to trial.

The trouble with the police, the committee found, is lack of intelligence. A little more than twenty-five per cent of Cleveland's men were of the moron grade of feeble-mindedness. Only thirty-three per cent of the Cleveland force was of average intelligence, according to army intelligence tests.

The detective squad in Cleveland showed even more amazing results, according to the report. Not one man was of first rate intelligence.

OLDEST EPISCOPAL BISHOP SUCCUMBS

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., Feb. 28—Episcopalians throughout the country today mourned the death of Bishop Ethelbert Talbot, the oldest bishop in the Episcopal Church. He died at the age of seventy-nine last night at the Tuckahoe home of his daughter, Mrs. Franklin Donaldson.

Bishop Talbot, who retired from active duty last October 1 because of illness, formerly was presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church. He suffered a stroke in Boston recently and had been failing in health since.

Bishop Talbot was the author of "My People of the Plains" and "A Bishop Among His Flock." He was one of the group of missionary pioneers who played a conspicuous part in the winning of the west.

INTENSIVE SEA RCH FAILS TO PRODUCE TRACE OF AVIATORS

Plane Disappears In Night Flight To Annapolis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Close scrutiny of the waters of Chesapeake Bay having yielded no clue, the aerial search for three missing naval airmen spread out fanwise today over the wooded hills of Maryland and Virginia.

Land and seaplanes joined in the search at dawn today for the three officers and their Amphibian plane who have been missing for nearly thirty-six hours. They disappeared completely while on a simple two-hour flight from Hampton Roads to Annapolis.

The missing officers are: Commander T. G. Ellyson, one of the most expert pilots in the navy; Lt. Com. Hugo Schmidt, of Brooklyn, and Lt. Roger Ransehousen of Springfield, Mass. Ellyson, the first man to qualify as a naval air pilot, and who trained under the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtis, was a native of Richmond.

They left Hampton Roads at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in an Amphibian plane. They should have reached Annapolis about 4 a. m. but when noon came and they had not arrived, some alarm was felt and scouting planes were sent out to comb the waters of the Chesapeake for trace of them. It was believed they might have experienced motor trouble and landed in the water. But the searching planes droned all afternoon and into the night without getting a trace of them.

The search was extended this morning on the theory that in the darkness they may have gone off their course, which lies principally over water between Hampton Roads and Annapolis, and crashed on land in the wooded areas on either side of the bay. Naval authorities came reluctantly to the conclusion all must have been killed or seriously injured else they would have been able to report before this.

The waters of the Chesapeake were quiet all of yesterday, at least there was no roughness sufficient to have sunk the Amphibian craft in the opinion of flyers.

Commander Ellyson left Norfolk to go to the bedside of his twelve-year-old daughter, Mildred, who is critically ill in the naval hospital at Annapolis. Mrs. Ellyson was not informed until this morning that her husband was missing. She knew he was due to leave Hampton Roads yesterday morning and was considerably concerned over his failure to arrive yesterday.

BRUMBY FREED OF DISASTER CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.— Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, who was vigorously criticised in the first report of the naval board of inquiry on the S-4 disaster, has been acquitted by the supplementary investigation ordered last week by Secretary Wilbur.

The second report of the naval court, which has concluded its job of setting forth "completely and with particularity," the reasons for its general findings, probably will be published in a week or ten days, following review by the secretary and the judge advocate general.

Although the reconvened court confirmed its original conclusions that the commander of both the S-4 and the coast guard destroyer Paulding were equally responsible for the disaster, the second report also endorses the statement of the navy bureau of navigation that the "major responsibility" for the crash rested with the S-4 because of the relatively higher visibility under the existing weather conditions.

FLOODS INUNDATE EIGHTY VILLAGES

PEKIN, Feb. 28—Eighty villages were inundated and twenty thousand persons were made homeless when the Yellow River overflowed and burst its banks at Litsing in the northeast section of the province of Shantung, according to a dispatch received today from the International Famine Relief Commission.

This latest catastrophe added to the horror and suffering of residents in the province. Four million Shantungese are now starving from recent droughts and famines, it is reported.

PRINCE IMPROVES

MELTON MOWBRAY, Eng., Feb. 28.—Prince Henry, younger brother of the Prince of Wales, who was injured while hunting yesterday when he was thrown from his horse, was resting easily today. The attending physician said that no further injuries had developed. King reassured that their son was not George and Queen Mary have been sriously hurt.

Government Scientists Doubt "Fuelless Motor"

(Copyright, 1928, By I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.— Terrestial magnetism may be harnessed to create energy that will turn wheels and make telegraph instruments tick, a group of government scientists at the Bureau of Standards agreed today, but they turned thumbs down on the mysterious and much discussed "fuelless motor" invented by Lester J. Hendershot of Pittsburgh.

That such a motor or generator can be used to drive airplanes was regarded as extremely doubtful by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, inventor of the earth inductor compass that guided Lindbergh to France, and Dr. H. D. Hubbard, who has visualized such apparent impossibilities as a camera which focuses automatically as does the human eye, and interplanetary transportation.

"To operate an airplane requires at least 400 horsepower. A device that would develop that power from earth currents would be too heavy and cumbersome for aircraft.

"If Hendershot's generator operates a motor or lights a light, the whole story of the invention has not been told. From the newspaper dispatches I am at a loss to understand what kind of a machine it is. I can conceive of no practical device that would develop sufficient power from earth magnetism to run an airplane."

The earth inductor compass is based on the principle that the voltage of a direct current dynamo is changed by shifting the angle between the magnetic field and the brushes, which collect the current from a revolving armature. The armature is driven by a wind wheel, whose motion is dependent upon the movement of the airplane.

While there are few "impossibles" in Dr. Hubbard's vocabulary, he said that a "fuelless motor" that would drive an airplane "looks impossible."

"It's a fact that here in the bureau, the light of the North Star, millions of light miles away in space, has been so directed as to turn a small mirror," Hubbard said.

"A device was used in the war that would detect the presence of a man within fifty feet by the heat given off by his face. But that doesn't mean that the North Star's radiation would charge a storage battery, or that water could be boiled by the heat of a man's face."

Hubbard explained some remarkable manifestations of the effect of earth currents, supposed to be the motive power of the new generator. In periods of sun spot maximum it has been found possible to operate telegraph instruments all over eastern United States and in England without batteries, simply from the power generated by magnetic storms.

In theory the magnetic storms light lights since they are responsible for the mysterious phenomenon of the aurora—the blazing electric light system of the frozen north.

"But to say that the comparatively weak magnetic field of the earth, which turns the compass needle, will develop in a generator sufficient energy to drive an airplane motor, is too much, and proof of the airplane in flight must be furnished before the invention is taken seriously," Hubbard said.

States which will be affected by the threatened walk-out include Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, Texas, Ohio, and northern West Virginia. In these sections some union operators have been working under temporary wage agreements. All efforts thus far to negotiate a settlement have failed, union officials declared.

At present about 138,000 men are on strike.

The committee collected about 200 pages of testimony on its trip. Instead of a written report, the sub-committee will relate orally to the full committee its experiences in the mine camps. A meeting was called for Thursday. The general investigation by the full committee probably will get under way next week.

In the committee's opinion some legislative remedy must be found to relieve the present strike conditions or unrest will spread to other industries, including the railroads, and affect thousands of persons. No program has been mapped out but a bill calling for federal supervision of the coal industry will be presented by one or two of the committee members. Sen. Wheeler (D) of Montana already has introduced a bill to nationalize the mines.

The greatest ill of the industry, the committee believes, is overproduction and an oversupply of miners.

The committee was strong in its denunciation of the alleged misuse of injunctions in labor disputes. Senator Gooding characterized as "outrageous" the injunction which forbids strikers to congregate in the little church yard at Rossiter, Pa., to sing hymns. The senate judiciary committee is now holding hearings on the Shipstead bill to curb the injunctve power of the federal courts.

Activities of alleged communists among striking coal miners aroused Senator Gooding.

"We must get the I. W. W. by the throat and choke it to death," he declared. "If we don't the gutters of our streets will run knee deep with blood. The industrial leaders of the country should fight this menace."

Philip Murray, vice president of the Mine Workers, told the committee "the communists believe they can dominate the American labor movement if they can get control of the United Mine Workers, the largest single union in the country."

MELLON NEARS 73

One of the administrations "young men"—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who next month will celebrate his seventy-third birthday, made this remark today. He was commenting on the fact that the senate is holding up confirmation of Representative Green (R) of Iowa, as a member of the court of claims because he is two years over the seventy year retirement age for judges.

"Seventy-two is not very old," Mellon said.

COMPROMISE ON FLOOD CONTROL APPEARS POSSIBLE IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—Four days of intensive efforts by President Coolidge and congressional leaders to work out a compromise in the Mississippi River flood control fight began to bear fruit today.

The house flood control committee, will take the first step by re-writing the bill which it voted out of committee after four months of hearings.

Another bill was being framed by house administration leaders in collaboration with the war department and senate Republicans.

"There is a yielding on the part of everybody," said Rep. Cox (D) of Georgia, a member of the house flood control committee.

Rep. Reid (R) of Illinois, chairman of the committee, was reticent about the proposed new bill. He has indicated a willingness to compromise on every point but the local contribution plan.

Rep. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican house leader, declared that satisfactory progress is being made in the compromise negotiations. He indicated that administration leaders would support a bill which provides that the work shall be carried on while the question of distribution of costs is being considered. This proposal, originated by Rep. Madden (R) of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, was endorsed by President Coolidge.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS MEET TO DISCUSS WILLIS BATTLE PLANS

Twenty Party Chiefs Consult With Carmi Thompson —Drys Said To Favor Ohio Senator

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 28.—Plans for the pre-primary campaign to be waged on behalf of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis for the Republican presidential nomination are scheduled to be discussed at a conference at Willis' state headquarters here this afternoon between Col. Carmi A. Thompson, campaign manager for Willis, and about twenty Ohio Republican leaders from various sections of the state.

Special attention will be given, it was stated, to activities looking to the election, at the statewide presidential primaries on April 24, of Willis' candidates for delegates and alternates to the Republican national convention.

Announcement was made at the offices of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown that the names of Hoover and Willis candidates for delegates and alternates will be arranged alternately in the same column on the G. O. P. presidential primary ballots. The name of each candidate will be accompanied by his or her, first and second choices for the presidential nomination, it was said.

Although officials of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League were of the opinion that the league will take no official action, "for the present, at least," relative to the Hoover and Willis presidential candidacies publicity was given here today to the declaration by Willis supporters that "the drys are uniting in their support of Willis."

These supporters of Willis asserted that the drys were backing Willis because: "Senator Willis is tried and true and has been fighting under the dry banner all during his public life; Secretary Hoover has little, are no, past record along this line, and Hoover leaders are 'wet.'

WOMAN, FOUR CHILDREN DIE

Mother Trapped In Rescue Attempt

QUEBEC, Feb. 28.— Mrs. Raoul Gerneau and four of her ten children were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home at Charlesbourg, a suburb.

Mrs. Gerneau had rescued six of the children and gone back into the flaming house to save the others when she was trapped. The father, a contractor, was away at work at the time of the tragedy.

FOILED IN ATTEMPT TO PRESENT GIFTS

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—Using the one English sentence she has learned unforgetatbly, Mme. Germaine Gosselin who for a week has tried in vain to present gifts she brought from France to Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh today observed: "America—she is a difficult country."

Among the articles Mme. Gosselin has are a book autographed by several widely known Frenchmen, a tapestry illustrating Lindbergh's exploit and a painting of the flier.

At every turn Mrs. Gosselin has been told the same thing—get credentials. She has none.

Mrs. Gosselin has called at Mrs. Lindbergh's home three times only to find her away.

John Lode, mayor of Detroit, and Lindbergh's uncle, informed Mrs. Gosselin he would be glad to see her "after she has seen Mrs. Lindbergh."

Mrs. Lindbergh is now in Boston.

MOTHER OF JACKIE COOGAN IN SCANDAL

Claiming $750,000 in damages, Mrs. Corabel Bernstein brought action against Mrs. Lilian Coogan, mother of Jackie Coogan, juvenile star, alleging alienation of the affections of her husband, Arthur Bernstein, business manager of the Jackie Coogan Picture Corporation.

At the same time, Mrs. Bernstein, through her attorney, Charles W. Cradick, filed suit against her husband for divorce, charging him with indiscreet friendliness with Mrs. Coogan and cruelty toward herself.

The divorce complaint states that Bernstein's salary is $3,000 a week and lists community property totaling $250,000. It asks $1,000 alimony per month and $10,000 in attorney's fees.

RHAPSODY DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The secret of why J. J. Hourahan, of Edneyville, N. C., killed himself probably will be buried with him.

Whether he was emotionally overcome with the haunting melody of Liszt's "Second Rhapsody" or whether there were other reasons probably will never be learned.

Hourahan stabbed himself five times with a pocket knife last night in Keith's theater, while the audience sat enthralled with the strains of the Rhapsody.

DIRIGIBLE MOORED SAFELY AFTER LONG 2,200 MILE FLIGHT

Scheduled To Re-Fuel From Aircraft Carrier Patoka

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 28. — The huge U. S. navy dirigible Los Angeles presented a magnificent sight at France Flying Field here today, perched at the top of a mast erected especially for her coming. The dirigible was moored safely at 10:25 last night upon the completion of her longest non-stop flight since she crossed the ocean from Germany.

The ship left her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:55 o'clock Sunday morning. She made the 2,200 mile flight in thirty-nine hours and thirty minutes, averaging slightly less than sixty miles an hour.

Weather conditions were favorable for the expected departure today of the ship for Guantanamo Bay, where it will refuel from the aircraft carrier Patoka.

Commander Rosendahl said that he expected the dirigible would start for the Patoka early today, possibly at eight o'clock. He said manouvers with the mother ship might be attempted.

The Los Angeles was sighted over Colon at 9:30 p. m. She made her way majestically toward the flying field. Her silver-sheened sides gleamed brightly as she entered the flood of light directed skyward by huge searchlights at the field.

Her mooring was effected after manouvering of about a half an hour without undue trouble. Three hundred soldiers helped anchor the ship.

The work of Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and officers and men of the crew in handling the ship was accorded high praise from all sides.

Naval officials hailed the dirigible's feat as a practical demonstration of the feasibility of using dirigibles for long distance flights.

The portable mooring mast to which the ship was anchored was constructed in the United States under the direction of Commander Rosendahl and was shipped to the canal zone about two weeks ago.

The dirigible's successful flight was originally planned three years ago but was abandoned at that time because of a shortage of helium gas.

The ship performed up to expectations in every way, although Commander Rosendahl declared after the landing that weather conditions had not proved as favorable as had been expected. The inclement weather encountered by the ship was given as the reason for its tardy arrival. It had been expected at six p. m.

A huge throng had collected at the field when the anchorage was made. Roads leading to the field were jammed with vehicles of every description.

Ground lights on the field and red lights atop the hangars and houses on the field intermingled to add to the glamour of the scene.

EXAMINE FLIVVER PLANE FOR DEFECTS

DETROIT, Feb. 28—The "flivver" plane in which Harry Brooks, 25-year-old aviator lost his life in a crash at Melbourne, Fla., will be subjected to searching inspection by aircraft experts of the Ford Motor Company in the hope of determining what caused the tragic accident, it was learned today.

Brooks was the only member of the Ford flying staff ever allowed to fly the miniature craft and as a result other pilots of the company are not familiar with its operation.

Whether the accident to Brooks will cause the Ford Company to abandon plans believed to be under way to offer the "flivver" planes for sale to the public could not be learned.

Henry Ford, who is now in Fort Myers, Fla., will decide the future policy of the company in regards to the "flivver" planes, officials here said.

FAILURE OF POLICE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR CRIME SUCCESS

Crime Commission's Report Blames Lack Of Intelligence

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Inefficiency of the police, due to the "lack of average intelligence," is blamed for this country's "notorious crime record," in a report of the National Crime Commission made public today.

The report was made by the committee on inefficiency of police and courts. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, is chairman of the committee.

The report admits that courts and parole boards also have been at fault, "but," it adds, "the most startling thing is the small number of criminals caught by the police."

Crime, the report said, would seem to be the safest business in which one could engage. The luckless individual who is arrested, it was said, must attribute his misfortune "to an act of God, as he would in case of disastrous storm, shipwreck, or earthquake."

Only two per cent of thieves are apprehended in Cleveland and St. Louis. Buffalo arrests men only in three per cent of its robberies. New York, in 1925 made arrests in twenty per cent of its fellonies.

Further it was pointed out, the courts convict only a portion of the men brought to trial.

The trouble with the police, the committee found, is lack of intelligence. A little more than twenty-five per cent of Cleveland's men were of the moron grade of feeble-mindedness. Only thirty-three per cent of the Cleveland force was of average intelligence, according to army intelligence tests.

The detective squad in Cleveland showed even more amazing results, according to the report. Not one man was of first rate intelligence.

OLDEST EPISCOPAL BISHOP SUCCUMBS

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., Feb. 28— Episcopalians throughout the country today mourned the death of Bishop Ethelbert Talbot, the oldest bishop in the Episcopal Church. He died at the age of seventy-nine last night at the Tuckahoe home of his daughter, Mrs. Franklin Donaldson.

Bishop Talbot, who retired from active duty last October 1 because of illness, formerly was presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church. He suffered a stroke in Boston recently and had been failing in health since.

Bishop Talbot was the author of "My People of the Plains" and "A Bishop Among His Flock." He was one of the group of missionary pioneers who played a conspicuous part in the winning of the west.

INTENSIVE SEA RCH FAILS TO PRODUCE TRACE OF AVIATORS

Plane Disappears In Night Flight To Annapolis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Close scrutiny of the waters of Chesapeake Bay having yielded no clue, the aerial search for three missing naval airmen spread out fanwise today over the wooded hills of Maryland and Virginia.

Land and seaplanes joined in the search at dawn today for the three officers and their Amphibian plane who have been missing for nearly thirty-six hours. They disappeared completely while on a simple two-hour flight from Hampton Roads to Annapolis.

The missing officers are: Commander T. G. Ellyson, one of the most expert pilots in the navy; Lt. Com. Hugo Schmidt, of Brooklyn, and Lt. Roger Ransehousen of Springfield, Mass. Ellyson, the first man to qualify as a naval air pilot, and who trained under the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtis, was a native of Richmond.

They left Hampton Roads at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in an Amphibian plane. They should have reached Annapolis about 4 a. m. but when noon came and they had not arrived, some alarm was felt and scouting planes were sent out to comb the waters of the Chesapeake for trace of them. It was believed they might have experienced motor trouble and landed in the water. But the searching planes droned all afternoon and into the night without getting a trace of them.

The search was extended this morning on the theory that in the darkness they may have gone off their course, which lies principally over water between Hampton Roads and Annapolis, and crashed on land in the wooded areas on either side of the bay. Naval authorities came reluctantly to the conclusion all must have been killed or seriously injured else they would have been able to report before this.

The waters of the Chesapeake were quiet all of yesterday, at least there was no roughness sufficient to have sunk the Amphibian craft, in the opinion of flyers.

Commander Ellyson left Norfolk to go to the bedside of his twelve-year-old daughter, Mildred, who is critically ill in the naval hospital at Annapolis. Mrs. Ellyson was not informed until this morning that her husband was missing. She knew he was due to leave Hampton Roads yesterday morning and was considerably concerned over his failure to arrive yesterday.

BRUMBY FREED OF DISASTER CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.— Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, who was vigorously criticised in the first report of the naval board of inquiry on the S-4 disaster, has been acquitted by the supplementary investigation ordered last week by Secretary Wilbur.

The second report of the naval court, which has concluded its job of setting forth "completely and with particularity," the reasons for its general findings, probably will be published in a week or ten days, following review by the secretary and the judge advocate general.

Although the reconvened court confirmed its original conclusions that the commander of both the S-4 and the coast guard destroyer Paulding were equally responsible for the disaster, the second report also endorses the statement of the navy bureau of navigation that the "major responsibility" for the crash rested with the S-4 because of the relatively higher visibility under the existing weather conditions.

FLOODS INUNDATE EIGHTY VILLAGES

PEKIN, Feb. 28—Eighty villages were inundated and twenty thousand persons were made homeless when the Yellow River overflowed and burst its banks at Litsing in the northeast section of the province of Shantung, according to a dispatch received today from the International Famine Relief Commission.

This latest catastrophe added to the horror and suffering of residents in the province. Four million Shantungese are now starving from recent droughts and famines, it is reported.

Government Scientists Doubt "Fuelless Motor"

(Copyright, 1928, By I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.— Terrestial magnetism may be harnessed to create energy that will turn wheels and make telegraph instruments tick, a group of government scientists at the Bureau of Standards agreed today, but they turned thumbs down on the mysterious and much discussed "fuelless motor" invented by Lester J. Hendershot of Pittsburgh.

That such a motor or generator can be used to drive airplanes was regarded as extremely doubtful by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, inventor of the earth inductor compass that guided Lindbergh to France, and Dr. H. D. Hubbard, who has visualized such apparent impossibilities as a camera which focuses automatically as does the human eye, and interplanetary transportation.

"To operate an airplane requires at least 400 horsepower. A device that would develop that power from earth currents would be too heavy and cumbersome for aircraft.

"If Hendershot's generator operates a motor or lights a light, the whole story of the invention has not been told. From the newspaper dispatches I am at a loss to understand what kind of a machine it is. I can conceive of no practical device that would develop sufficient power from earth magnetism to run an airplane."

The earth inductor compass is based on the principle that the voltage of a direct current dynamo is changed by shifting the angle between the magnetic field and the brushes, which collect the current from a revolving armature. The armature is driven by a wind wheel, whose motion is dependent upon the movement of the airplane.

While there are few "impossibles" in Dr. Hubbard's vocabulary, he said that a "fuelless motor" that would drive an airplane "looks impossible."

"It's a fact that here in the bureau, the light of the North Star, millions of light miles away in space, has been so directed as to turn a small mirror," Hubbard said.

"A device was used in the war that would detect the presence of a man within fifty feet by the heat given off by his face. But that doesn't mean that the North Star's radiation would charge a storage battery, or that water could be boiled by the heat of a man's face."

Hubbard explained some remarkable manifestations of the effect of earth currents, supposed to be the motive power of the new generator. In periods of sun spot maximum it has been found possible to operate telegraph instruments all over eastern United States and in England without batteries, simply from the power generated by magnetic storms.

In theory the magnetic storms light lights since they are responsible for the mysterious phenomenon of the aurora—the blazing electric light system of the frozen north.

"But to say that the comparatively weak magnetic field of the earth, which turns the compass needle, will develop in a generator sufficient energy to drive an airplane motor, is too much, and proof of the airplane in flight must be furnished before the invention is taken seriously," Hubbard said.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH McGLONE GIBSON SUPERMAN

How prone we all are to think that the other fellow is not as intellectual, not as understanding, not as big as we are. We go to a moving picture that is a little above the average in its appeal, and we say when we speak of it to someone else, "Yes, I enjoyed it very much, but I do not think it will be a popular success."

All the while there is a little glow of satisfaction that we are above the multitude in our appreciation of human problems, human endeavor, human nature itself.

And yet if that picture shows a real human problem worked out in a real human way, all humanity will read the story and appreciate its worth.

Because if it be a phase of life honestly confessed and honestly treated all humanity will recognize it.

The great trouble with motion pictures up to date is that those who are making them are always playing down to their audiences. They are afraid, not particularly of the censors, but of the almighty dollar when if they could but realize it they would see that everyone will pay for the real thing if he can get it. Tolstoy says that "Art is that which speaks to the greatest number."

If this be true, then one may have no compunctions in calling the motion picture an art for today it speaks to more people than any other medium of supposed artistic endeavor.

Therefore, it behooves our directors and producers not to be afraid of their audiences, not to try to think what their audiences will think, but to get as nearly as possible to those phases of life that every one will recognize—not as an isolated type or exaggerated thrill, but pure human nature. It is the most dramatic and thrilling thing on earth.

Memo: Thank God, we do not have to be versed in literature to know the real things which affect human life.

Make Tomorrow February 29th
Modernizing Day
AN EXTRA DAY IN THE YEAR FOR YOU
This day which comes only once in four years, is a pretty good time to make a checkup to see how thoroughly we have kept pace with modern life.
Yes, we are a modern people, and we don't as a rule, wait four years to go over our possessions and renew those things which are getting out of date.
Indeed not! Four years is altogether too long a time. Things change too fast these days. Every time we look at the snapshot album of a few years ago, it gives us a smile. Imagine waiting four years to get a new dress! Why even the Model T Ford is a back number.
Of course there is the electric iron that is getting pretty old and doesn't hold the heat. We have thought about it several times, but haven't bothered about it. It would be a lot nicer to have a new one, one of those new American Beauties, but then, it doesn't make such a terrible difference. It still irons.
But maybe, sometime soon, we are going to see about an electric washing machine. These washers they make now are so much more dependable than when we bought ours, years ago.
Speaking of the kitchen, did you ever see anything like the way one hangs on to old toasters, and all sorts of things? Why, do you know that our kitchen is just full of electrical goods we got years ago, a good deal of it when we were first married. And you'd die if you would see how some of it is banged up. It certainly has seen some use, especially the waffle iron.
There is the vacuum cleaner that is too old to be modern and too new to be antique. But we keep it because it will do.
We do it not because we really want to do it, but because we let ourselves drift. But tomorrow we are going to right-about-face. February 29th brings us up with a reminder — gives us a bird's eye view of what we've permitted to happen during the last four years. We're going to make Modernizing Day a day to catch up with ourselves—a day for replacing those dear old things which we really don't want, with new things that will make the details of life more enjoyable and really modern.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH McGLONE GIBSON SUPERMAN

How prone we all are to think that the other fellow is not as intellectual, not as understanding, not as big as we are. We go to a moving picture that is a little above the average in its appeal, and we say when we speak of it to someone else, "Yes, I enjoyed it very much, but I do not think it will be a popular success."

All the while there is a little glow of satisfaction that we are above the multitude in our appreciation of human problems, human endeavor, human nature itself.

And yet if that picture shows a real human problem worked out in a real human way, all humanity will read the story and appreciate its worth.

Because if it be a phase of life honestly confessed and honestly treated all humanity will recognize it.

The great trouble with motion pictures up to date is that those who are making them are always playing down to their audiences. They are afraid, not particularly of the censors, but of the almighty dollar, when if they could but realize it they would see that everyone will pay for the real thing if he can get it. Tolstoy says that "Art is that which speaks to the greatest number."

If this be true, then one may have no compunctions in calling the motion picture an art for today it speaks to more people than any other medium of supposed artistic endeavor.

Therefore, it behooves our directors and producers not to be afraid of their audiences, not to try to think what their audiences will think, but to get as nearly as possible to those phases of life that every one will recognize—not as an isolated type or exaggerated thrill, but pure human nature. It is the most dramatic and thrilling thing on earth.

Memo: Thank God, we do not have to be versed in literature to know the real things which affect human life.

At the meeting held in City Auditor T. H. Zell's office Monday, tentative plans were also laid for a Fourth of July Celebration in the park this year.

LOUD SPEAKER IS HEARD FOUR MILES

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A new radio loud speaker, described as having greater volume than that which was used to hurl music across the Hudson River from New York to New Jersey, has made its appearance here.

The speaker is claimed by its patentees to have a range of more than four miles. When running at full power in the office of its makers, listeners had to put cotton in their ears to escape from being deafened.*

ATTEMPT TO TRACE OWNERS OF DENTAL GOLD IS FRUITLESS

Attempts by Sheriff Ohmer Tate to trace ownership of dental gold valued at between $400 and $500, believed to have been stolen, found in the possession of Paul Fetters alias Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, when he was arrested near Waynesville after looting the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley, have so far met with failure.

Fetters and his companion, Leroy Reiser, 29, Circleville, were arrested by a marshal at Waynesville following an auto pursuit from Spring Valley. A search of Fetters' clothing revealed a pouch containing quantities of dental gold and a few small platinum pins used in dentist's offices.

The gold was first placed in a Waynesville bank for safe-keeping and later transferred to Xenia pending the almost hopeless task of tracing the rightful owner or owners.

Authorities believe Fetters stole small quantities of gold from various dentist's offices over Ohio but identification of the owners presents a difficult assignment.

If authorities fail to find the original owners, it may be necessary to return the gold to Fetters, who is confined in the Montgomery County Jail on a federal charge of possessing narcotics.

A local dentist appraised the gold at between $400 and $500.

Sheriff Tate has received no word from Birmingham, Ala., where Reiser was taken to face a murder charge in connection with a slaying of a woman in an apartment house in that city a year ago.

XENIA MERCHANTS UNITED FOR "DOLLAR DAY" HERE WEDNESDAY

Competing with other "bargain days" of similar nature, Xenia merchants are striving to outdo all their previous efforts in presenting an array of attractive offers for Dollar Day, Wednesday.

Under auspices of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, Xenia stores are co-operating in making Wednesday a "red letter" day in Xenia business annals and are looking forward to attracting one of the largest crowds ever assembled here for a special sale effort.

Items offered by the merchants for sale have been checked and given the "okeh" of a committee from the Merchants' Association, to insure against petty competition, lack of fairplay and co-operation. The merchants entering Dollar Day have also to adhere to other rules of the association against unfair competition and these factors have tended to insure the success of previous bargain days and will do likewise with the coming occasion.

Fifty Xenia merchants are "observing" Dollar Day Wednesday. Attractive advertisements were published in the "Dollar Day Edition," of THE GAZETTE yesterday.

The large and varied list of bargains is expected to draw shoppers from over the county to the city and merchants were busy Tuesday getting in readiness for the big influx of trade.

NEW TRIALS SOUGHT IN LIQUOR CASES

Motions for new trials on behalf of Michael J. Dugan and James Blair, convicted by Judge S. C. Wright on liquor charges last week, have been filed by defense counsel in Probate Court. The court has not passed upon the motions.

Dugan, proprietor of a billiard parlor on N. Whiteman St., was convicted of possessing liquor, and Blair was found guilty of unlawful delivery of liquor.

Sentences in each case were reserved for three days to allow filing of motions for new trials.

Wheeler Kimbro, colored, operator of an E. Main St. pool room, who was arrested at the same time, drew a fine of $500 and costs when he changed his plea from not guilty to guilty on a charge of possessing liquor.

AIRCRAFT ADDRESS GIVEN BY OFFICER AT ROTARY MEETING

Confidential government pictures, showing the latest types of aircraft were shown to members of the Xenia Rotary Club by Lieut. Myers and Mr. Sommers of Wright Field, Fairfield, at the Elks Club, Tuesday noon.

Lieut. Hegenberger, one of the fliers who made a successful nonstop flight to Hawaii a few months ago, was scheduled to address the club, but was called to Boston and did not return in time. Lieut. Myers was sent in his place and he furnished one of the most interesting programs held by the Rotarians.

He was stationed in Hawaii three years and three months in Texas in balloon observation work. He was transferred to Wright Field Monday and his appearance before the local club was one of his first assignments here.

Mr. Sommers operated the motion picture machine while Lieut. Myers explained the different types of planes shown, and other pictures. The pictures were only recently taken.

An almost 100 per cent attendance marked the meeting. The Rev. Carl Sundberg, Springfield, will address the club next Tuesday noon.

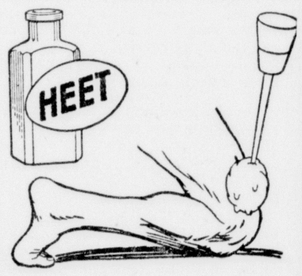

SMALL FIRE LOSS

Damage not exceeding $5 was caused by a small fire at the home of L. M. Cundiff, 611 S. Detroit St., at 11:55 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The blaze is thought to have been caused by a defective flue in an unused grate in the basement. The grate had been blocked up and the fire was confined to the flue. Firemen were summoned.

XENIA MERCHANTS UNITED FOR "DOLLAR DAY" HERE WEDNESDAY

Competing with other "bargain days" of similar nature, Xenia merchants are striving to outdo all their previous efforts in presenting an array of attractive offers for Dollar Day, Wednesday.

Under auspices of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, Xenia stores are co-operating in making Wednesday a "red letter" day in Xenia business annals and are looking forward to attracting one of the largest crowds ever assembled here for a special sale effort.

Items offered by the merchants for sale have been checked and given the "okeh" of a committee from the Merchants' Association, to insure against petty competition, lack of fairplay and co-operation. The merchants entering Dollar Day have also to adhere to other rules of the association against unfair competition and these factors have tended to insure the success of previous bargain days and will do likewise with the coming occasion.

Fifty Xenia merchants are "observing" Dollar Day Wednesday. Attractive advertisements were published in the "Dollar Day Edition," of THE GAZETTE yesterday.

The large and varied list of bargains is expected to draw shoppers from over the county to the city and merchants were busy Tuesday getting in readiness for the big influx of trade.

NEW TRIALS SOUGHT IN LIQUOR CASES

Motions for new trials on behalf of Michael J. Dugan and James Blair, convicted by Judge S. C. Wright on liquor charges last week, have been filed by defense counsel in Probate Court. The court has not passed upon the motions.

Dugan, proprietor of a billiard parlor on N. Whiteman St., was convicted of possessing liquor, and Blair was found guilty of unlawful delivery of liquor.

Sentences in each case were reserved for three days to allow filing of motions for new trials.

Wheeler Kimbro, colored, operator of an E. Main St. pool room, who was arrested at the same time, drew a fine of $500 and costs when he changed his plea from not guilty to guilty on a charge of possessing liquor.

MAYOR'S COURT

FIVE ARRESTED

Five arrests were made by police in a raid which interrupted an alleged liquor party in progress at the home of Howard Littler, 45, Charles St., Monday night.

The raid was conducted by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig.

Howard Littler, charged with possessing liquor was fined $100 and costs by Mayor John W. Prugh Tuesday morning. He pleaded guilty and will be committed to the County Jail to serve out the fine and costs in the event of failure to pay the assessment, police declare.

Stella Littler, 37, his wife, pleaded guilty to intoxication, but the mayor reserved sentence.

Michael Houlahan, 30, was fined $10 and costs; Michael Leahey, 35, $25 and costs, and J. Derrick, 30, $10 and costs. Each pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness.

The officers reported they confiscated two quarts of liquor, contained in a can, which was found behind a door.

LEGION GIVES FLAG TO HOSPITAL HERE

Simple ceremonies marked the presentation of an American flag to McClellan Hospital by Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, Saturday.

A Legion committee headed by Captain Charles L. Darlington, former post commander, visited the hospital. Darlington made a presentation speech as a feature of the flag-raising ceremony.

Dr. Benjamin R. McClellan, head of the hospital, who has been chaplain of the post since its organization here, responded.

The flag was raised on a flag pole located at the north entrance. The local post made a similar gift years ago at the time when the McClellan Hospital was built and accepted its first patient.

ATTEMPT TO TRACE OWNERS OF DENTAL GOLD IS FRUITLESS

Attempts by Sheriff Ohmer Tate to trace ownership of dental gold valued at between $400 and $500, believed to have been stolen, found in the possession of Paul Fetters alias Paul Sheridan, 35, Columbus, when he was arrested near Waynesville after looting the office of Dr. A. N. Vandeman, Spring Valley, have so far met with failure.

Fetters and his companion, Leroy Reiser, 29, Circleville, were arrested by a marshal at Waynesville following an auto pursuit from Spring Valley. A search of Fetters' clothing revealed a pouch containing quantities of dental gold and a few small platinum pins used in dentist's offices.

The gold was first placed in a Waynesville bank for safe-keeping and later transferred to Xenia pending the almost hopeless task of tracing the rightful owner or owners.

Authorities believe Fetters stole small quantities of gold from various dentist's offices over Ohio but identification of the owners presents a difficult assignment.

If authorities fail to find the original owners, it may be necessary to return the gold to Fetters, who is confined in the Montgomery County Jail on a federal charge of possessing narcotics.

A local dentist appraised the gold at between $400 and $500.

Sheriff Tate has received no word from Birmingham, Ala., where Reiser was taken to face a murder charge in connection with a slaying of a woman in an apartment house in that city a year ago.

Confidential government pictures, showing the latest types of aircraft were shown to members of the Xenia Rotary Club by Lieut. Myers and Mr. Sommers of Wright Field, Fairfield, at the Elks Club, Tuesday noon.

Lieut. Hegenberger, one of the fliers who made a successful nonstop flight to Hawaii a few months ago, was scheduled to address the club, but was called to Boston and did not return in time. Lieut. Myers was sent in his place and he furnished one of the most interesting programs held by the Rotarians.

He was stationed in Hawaii three years and three months in Texas in balloon observation work. He was transferred to Wright Field Monday and his appearance before the local club was one of his first assignments here.

Mr. Sommers operated the motion picture machine while Lieut. Myers explained the different types of planes shown, and other pictures. The pictures were only recently taken.

An almost 100 per cent attendance marked the meeting. The Rev. Carl Sundberg, Springfield, will address the club next Tuesday noon.

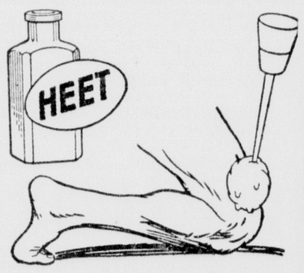

SMALL FIRE LOSS

Damage not exceeding $5 was caused by a small fire at the home of L. M. Cundiff, 611 S. Detroit St., at 11:55 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The blaze is thought to have been caused by a defective flue in an unused grate in the basement. The grate had been blocked up and the fire was confined to the flue. Firemen were summoned.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD IS WONDERFUL—The Lord preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow; but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down.—Psalm 146:9.

OHIO JURIST IN LIMELIGHT

Carrington T. Marshall's analysis of "Liberty Under Law in America" is attracting considerable attention among social workers, lawyers, and ministers, particularly because of the similarity of its conclusions to those contained in the booklet, "What about Prohibition and the Law of My Country?" which represents the joint authorship and approval of 25 leaders of young people in the principal youth organizations of the country.

As chief justice of the Ohio supreme court, Mr. Marshall brings the experience and training of a long career to the consideration of law as related to liberty, and his conclusion is, "If certain of our laws cannot be enforced, none of our laws can be enforced."

Harry N. Holmes of the World Alliance of International Friendship heads the Commission on Youth and Law Observance, whose membership includes governors and noted business men and ministers. The youth's commission's booklet states, "The Eighteenth Amendment will make more trouble for the communities that ignore it than for those that try to enforce it. Considering the way in which prohibition was adopted and established in the Constitution, there is no practical way to change it that is acceptable to anyone who has a serious concern for the public welfare." The commission adds, "We must reserve, of course, the right and duty of all citizens to join in repealing the Amendment itself if ultimately it should appear to be socially ineffectual and undesirable, but there is no honorable alternative to acceptance of the law substantially as it is except a frank and frontal attack on the Amendment itself."

"The people are sovereign and the officials are the servants of the sovereign people," writes Justice Marshall. "Hence, the people are responsible for the character and quality of government. Let it be known that the people are alert and prompt to repudiate an official who violates his oath of office, and corruption in government will gradually but surely disappear."

Noting that the eighteenth amendment was adopted by a two-thirds vote, the jurist states, "The unwillingness of a portion of the people to submit to majority rule is a thrust at the Constitution itself." Justice Marshall estimates that 140,000 murderers remain at large and unpunished in the United States, and that not less than 500,000 persons are pursuing lives of crime. The people, he says, should exercise more care in the selection of public officials and should insist on proper enforcement of all laws.

Many politicians who could not get elected to office, have decided that they do not want such honors.

In an argument it is futile to stake your prejudice against the other fellow's common sense.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

SEA POWER

Carthage, Greece, Rome, each in her day, ruled the Mediterranean sea. With sea power went world power, expanded trade and civilization. Those who read their history well, know that America should have the world's foremost merchant marine if she is to be dominant in commerce and a leader among the nations. Admiral Plunkett is right when he says our prosperity and our productivity propel us toward the rule of the seas. But we don't need a battleship for every tradeship.

THE HOPE

Nobody who knows boys and girls can feel depressed about the future of America. The hope of the land lies in what we are doing to build up youngsters into good citizens. The greatest agency for the work is the Y. M. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. is inter-denominational. Catholics, Jews, Protestants, foreigners, native Americans — all are eligible to membership. All share the religious, educational and physical privileges of this greatest of all organizations of its kind.

Money given to the Y. M. C. A. is money spent to make a greater America.

REVENGE

The meanest motive man can have for his acts is the motive of revenge. It harks back to his animal ancestry. It shows that he is far from completely humanized. Men suddenly lifted to high office and who make their first duty the firing of their enemies, are simply in an incompletely civilized state.

WISE

The Irish Free State spends 20 per cent of the taxes it collects on education. When some other countries realize that the money spent on schoolhouses and education is an investment and not a luxury, they will make a better use of their taxes. A new government has the benefit of the experience of older nations. Ireland is worth watching. Irishmen are never afraid of change, and they are not often sleepy.

DIALING

"No matter where you turn the dial," says Senator Smith, of South Carolina, "you get the same tin pan noise. It is varied only by an occasional announcement about a spark plug. I am through trying."

Radio listeners, some of them, will be sympathetic. But the senator is unduly severe. The quality of radio programs has improved. There are more artists of note and more addresses worth listening to. Public taste improves—in spite of everything. And when the demand is what it ought to be, the product will have to measure up.

The Daybook of a New Yorker

—By— BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. — It became worse than banal to talk of the swarms of impoverished entities of bygone years now enjoying oblivion in the squalor of the poorer sections of New York. Yet the following story recommends itself, if only because it is too romantically maudlin not to be true.

When a woman named Anastasis Tchaikovsky arrived in New York and announced herself to be the Grand Duchess Anastasia, only living daughter of the late Czar Nicholas, the tabloids searched about for persons who could prove or disprove the claim. They found Iliadore, the "mad Monk," once the confessor and theological teacher of the Russian Royal Family, working as a porter for twenty-four dollars a week. One tab persuaded him to do a series of articles, disproving the alleged Grand Duchess' assertions, and agreed to pay him a good round sum for the same.

Then the difficulty arose. The monk, through his interpreter, spoke as follows: "My employer has heard that I am to write for your paper, which he dislikes very much. He says he will no longer employ me as his porter if I do not give up the project. So I am afraid I shall have to give it up."

The man who had once been head of the orthodox Russian church had to be assured that he would be found another job as porter, before he would continue.

Credit the best wheeze of recent weeks to Sophie Tucker. Says Sophie: "When better men are made, I'll 'make' 'em!"

Prolific and almost universal eccentricities makes a New York daily column, such as this one, possible. For example, should one enter a store titled "William Debitt, Steamfitter," on upper Third avenue, it will be best to ask, not for steamfitting, but for books. For Debitt deals mostly in rare volumes and pictures.

It seems that, steamfitter though he was, Mr. Debitt's soul nevertheless always yearned for art. So he began to collect books. When his home began to belch dusty tomes, according to Mr. Debitt's own story, Mrs. Debitt put her foot down. Mrs. Debitt said: "Bill, you'll have to do something with those books. I can't have 'em cluttering up my house any longer."

So for want of anything better to do, Bill started moving them down to his store. And customers began to buy more books than they did steamfitting. Now, Bill does an occasional job at his own trade, just to keep his hand in. And absent-minded fellow that he is, Mr. Debitt has never changed the "Steamfitting" on his window to "Books."

No doubt the story about the professor who conducted a test to establish the relative reaction of blonds and brunettes to amorous stimuli has been broadcast. To those who came in late, I explain that the professor noted the blood pressure of the girls as they watched a movie in which hearty necking was portrayed. The test was held in a theatre here. And the professor announced that his experiment showed that brunettes were much more sensitive than blonds. The three flaxen-haired girls showed comparatively little reaction. It seems to me that the learned man might have been a bit more scientific in his experiment. Could he not have tested the ladies' hair to find out if the color was natural? For, as it happens, two of the blonds were born brunettes and transformed by peroxide.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

MEN'S LIKES AND DISLIKES

It appears that business men are fond of music. Just put the word "Music" on an announcement of a business gathering, and with all other factors equal, about one-fifth more persons will come than if you had said nothing about any music. The average business man would rather be entertained than instructed.

Next to being entertained, however, a business man would rather hear a discussion of some phase of business in which he himself is especially interested. After that his favorite topics are those dealing with either politics or finance.

Two speakers usually attract a bigger audience of business men than only one, but three will not attract as many as two. You see, it is impossible to pick one man who will appeal to everybody, but with two speakers there is a chance that those who do not care for one will like the other. Three talkers, though, scare a certain percentage of men away, because they fear at least one, if not all three speakers, may talk too long.

Though two is the ideal number of speakers for a business men's gathering, three speakers are almost exactly the same as one in drawing power. And if there are more than three, the drawing power is in inverse ratio to the number. Not quite so many will come to hear four men talk as to hear three, and the audience will be smaller for every speaker added until, if you have enough speakers, there will not be any audience at all.

The first thing the future blaze battlers want to learn is how to play checkers. Every student owes it to his alma mater to try for the checker varsity or at least seek a place on the pinochle squad.

LEAP YEAR HINTS TO GIRLS

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THE PLASTIC AGE OF BEAUTY

Those all important years of adolescence! They count for so much, for during this short period of time—only a few years at best—all that is strong and beautiful and fine can be cultivated in your daughter. All that you do for her, all that you teach her, will bear direct relationship to what she becomes when her womanhood dawns. It is for you to direct her "reluctant feet" toward health, loviness and a sturdy, splendid character. Are you doing it? Nowhere in the world can a mother give more to her daughter than here in America, and nowhere in the world are mothers less sensible in developing the natural heritage of their children.

Does that seem a startling statement to you? Let me tell you a little about the continental mother—of the time, the careful consideration, the intelligent thought she gives to her daughter's future. Do you think she waits for the fairy tale awakening, when overnight the ugly duckling turns to a beautiful swan? Not she! She knows life too well. She knows that the human ugly duckling does not undergo a metamorphosis. That unless her talent points of charm are patiently and skillfully cultivated, she will never bloom to radiant womanhood. She knows, too, that the sensitive mind of a little girl may suffer tortures through a sense of physical inferiority—and that her whole life may be blighted by the shyness, the awkwardness and the lack of poise which so often result.

That is why mothers who came to me in Paris 20 years ago, who blossomed into lovely brides and charming matrons, are bringing their little daughters to me now, not only for the actual physical care they require, but for counsel and advice.

These young girls are in the plastic age of beauty—the age of development — when the clever mother actively determines what loveliness is to be in the future of her adolescent girl.

I shall explain the methods and the principles I have employed successfully in London, Paris and Vienna, where the "plastic age" is scientifically trained to beauty.

MENU HINT

I am again giving a whole day's menu, and it contains some new ways of serving some of our old food favorites. The grapefruit served with canned strawberries makes a very different dish than the usual breakfast grapefruit. Better file the tomato recipe for use in canning season.

BREAKFAST
Strawberry Special
Omelet Toast Coffee
DINNER
Escalloped Potatoes Salmon Loaf
Parsnips Bright-Eye Salad
Bread Butter Milk
Raw Apples
SUPPER
Luncheon Tomatoes
Brown Bread Butter
Baked Apples with Cream
Molasses Cookies Tea Milk

TODAY'S RECIPES

Strawberry Special — Pare one large grapefruit, cutting off all the white membane; remove each section separately and cut into rather small pieces. Add one cup canned strawberries and one tablespoon sugar. Prepare the evening before using.

Bright-Eye Salad — Grate raw carrots and put in center of salad plate; surround with finely shredded cabbage and sprinkle with salt. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Luncheon Tomatoes—These are prepared at canning time. Select tomatoes that will slip into a jar easily without being cut. Scald and remove skins. Pack into hot sterilized jars; add one teaspoon of salt and fill with boiling water. Seal, test for leaks, then set jar into a vessel containing enough boiling water to cover the jar one-half inch or more. Cover tightly and let stand until water is cool. Remove jar, wipe and store.

Put up in this way the tomatoes remain quite firm—they look like fresh—and are fine for salads. We eat them with the addition of a little sugar. The liquid may be drunk or put into the soup pot.

WASHINGTON PIE
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Three eggs, one cup pulyerized sugar, one cup flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs light, add sugar and a few grains of salt; beat until light and foamy; add flour, baking powder and vanilla. Bake in quick oven. Make a soft custard, adding white of egg last. Splid cake and spread with hot custard. Whipped cream may be served on top if desired.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — Once, a Republican was a Republican and a Democrat was a Democrat. Take a look at two groups of 'em today and you can't tell which is which, they're so jumbled up.

Yet authorities there be who say they'd sort 'emselves out, if offered a choice between a real Republican candidate and a real Democrat.

It would seem as if this would be a good thing, for why vote?—if you don't know which side you're voting on. Thus reasoning, about half of us don't, which, the campaign managers tell us, is deplorable, in a republic or a democracy, or whatever this is.

To effect such a re-classification, however, in the present state of confusion, our two rival condidates must be, each, a most pronounced unmistakable type of his wn particular breed of cats—a Republican Alexander Hamilton would o. k., and a Democrat Jefferson would endorse.

Not all of our current presidential possibilities fill this bill.

For instance, we have southern Democrats who'd plunk for Frank Willis against Al Smith; seaboard Republicans who fancy Smith above Willis.

So far as I can see,the cleanest-cut test in the coming election would be between Senator Curtis of Kansas and Reed of Missouri, respectively Republican and Democrat—beyond preadventure of a doubt.

Curtis—a "big business" conservative, a high protectionist, a defender of the doctrine that whatever Washington does is right, an imperialist (which, of course, he'll deny), a dry, and a good farm reliefer, to offset, in the corn belt, his acceptability to the "intrusts" down east.

Reed—a strictly old-fashioned constitutionalist—states rights — international isolationist — a wet —tariff for revenue only — Andy Jackson up to date.

Curtis—a wily politician, who can also fight. Reed—a terrific fighter, who's also a wonder in politics.

Curtis — tactful, ingratiating. Reed — chain lightning and TNT.

Politically — poles apart.

This pair ought to sort 'em out, north and south, east and west.

Consider the others — the principal ones.

Hoover — technically a Republican, but could run on either ticket (if you don't believe it, read his book—"American Individualism" — it's good), consequent- can't possibly run, in the political sense, for president, but only for the job of nonpartisan business manager of the United States— at which, of course, he'd be a dandy, but he wouldn't sort anybody out.

Al Smith — magnetic—would attract and repel like sixty—but both, with both kinds of votes—no sorting out.

Dawes-Lowden, or Lowden-Dawes — not pronounced enough, except possibly sectionally, as to Lowden — underslung pipe and Hell-and-Maria vocabulary insufficient to sort out electorate, as to Dawes.

Al Ritchie—as genuine an original Democrat as Reed, but hasn't Reed's punch—hence couldn't sort out as many votes.

Watson and Willis—mere "favorite sons."

Norris and Borah—really belong to a separate bunch—couldn't sort out anything—might even make the mixup worse.

Of course it's a mighty long chance that both Curtis and Reed, if either, will be nominated.

But they certainly would furnish a swell contrast.

That line-up of candidates would give the voters something to vote about.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It is certainly not wrong to be good friends with your second cousin, "Miss Wondering," and if people talk, you should pay no attention.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl of 16 and have been keeping company with a young man three years my senior. I care a lot for him, but he has never shown any sign of affection for me. If he sees me home he goes as far as the door, bids be a cool good night, and departs. I wouldn't mind an occasional kiss, but he never offers any, and I wouldn't ask. How can I get him to be more affectionate?

"Kiss Proof."

Don't try. Be glad your friend thinks enough of you to treat you as he would want another chap to treat his sister. You don't know when you're well off.

"My dear Friend Mrs. Lee: I read your letters every day and enjoy them very much. I can hardly believe there are any decent fellows left like the one I read about the other day, who signed himself W. W. H. He says the girls think him too slow. In my home town they are all too fast for me.

"Lonely Adele."

I don't think you need advice, Adele. Sorry I can't give W. W. H.'s address. I certainly hope your Prince Charming comes along and will prove all that you wish, for there are fine young men in the world, I assure you. Keep hoping.

Barbara wants R. E. A. L. to read this and know that she is sorry she got mad and wrote him that she was through with him. She wants to be friends with him again, but she has another boy friend and likes them both, and what is she to do? Can't you have good times with both, Barbara? If ont you'll simply have to decide which one you likek best.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb.

Making Babies

Mrs. B. is pregnant, and since she has been with child she has had a lot of serious troubles. One son was badly injured, and while she was rushing him to the hospital, she saw another son run down by an auto and badly hurt. Then she lost her little girl, aged 4, over whom she cannot stop grieving. She fears she will go out of her mind and that she will mark her coming babe.

My wear Mrs. B., by constantly grieving you are going to undermine your health and therefore the health of your unborn babe. That is the only way you will injure it.

Birth deformities are not due to "making" by the mother; as there is no direct nerve or blood connection between the mother and babe, it is not believed that any impressions are registered on the baby—not even good ones. They are probably due to some abnormality in the germ cells originally, which is inherited, or to some disease or abnormal condition in the mother, which prevents normal development. The number of babies born with abnormalities is very small, compared to the number of perfect babies. Just recently I was reading in my American Medical Journal of a pregnant woman who was so severly burned on her legs that she had to have both legs amputated. Still she gave birth to a perfectly normal, healthy child. If there had been anything in shock to the mother as a cause of birth marks, that baby should certainly have been marked.

Now, Mrs. B., thank God that He is sending you another child to take the place of the one you lost, and stop grieving. Realize that life is for the living, and that there are many worse sorrows than death alone.

Witches' Milk

The little secretion which is coming from your baby boy's breast, Mrs. M., is probably what is known as Witches' Milk, and is perfectly normal. Some observers have said that it is present in the breasts of both baby boy and girls in 15 per cent of their cases, and other observers have counted as high as 90 per cent of their cases. It has been observed for many years, and was called Witches' Milk from supersition.

This secretion is believed to be caused by the principle which is necessary to stimulate the milk in the mother's own breast, and is absorved in utero from the mother's blood.

If there is inflammation, there is no treatment, except to be careful of the baby's breast when handling him in nursing, bathing, etc. Above all things, do not try to squeeze out the secretion or manipulate the breasts in any way, for they may become inflamed so that an abscess will result and will have to be lanced.

De Lee gives the following method if there is a swelling and inflammation: The breasts are bathed and anointed with a small amount of camphor oil, padded slightly with cotton, and a smooth little breast binder sewed on, snugly enough so that the breasts will be protected. This is left on for five days, and the engorgement usually goes down.

We have a list of books on the care and feeding of children which you may have by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents with your request.

Mrs. T.—Yes, we have an article which goes into the diet during pregnancy and nursing. See answer to Mrs. M., above for directions.

Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.

NOTE:—Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on reducing and gaining.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A WOUNDED WARBLER

Peter looked at the two Bluebirds as they sat upon the branch Mr. Bluebird pouring out his tale of woe in a musical solo and his gentle wife listening to him, her head pressed to his breast.

"They have so much to be thankful for," said the boy. "They are so beautiful and they love each other so much and their children are so well and strong."

"All of which is very true," agreed Snowbird. "But you see they really like to think about the sad things. I don't like to be unhappy, you know, but then that may be because I have never had much trouble in my life. I am getting hungry now, though, so if you will excuse me I will run away and try to dig up a seed or two for luncheon. Goodby, boy. You will see me again."

Peter had been long enough among the birds to realize that when they made up their minds to do a thing it was not long before they set about it. So he was not at all surprised when, without more ado off flew pretty Junco.

It was quite evident that the Bluebirds had forgotten all about him. Now, his song hushed, the gallant husband was helping his adoring little wife home. Once more the boy was left alone.

Peter walked along slowly and he had not gone very far when he came to a wild rose bush that grew near the side of the brook. There he came to a sudden stop. At first he could not have told why. Nothing was in sight and yet he had a queer feeling that something was wrong. In the snow about the rose bush were drops of something that looked red—like blood. Peter bent down to examine them closely and then his ear caught a faint sound. He listened a second, then straightened up and peered around.

"That sounded like a groan," said Peter aloud, "and unless I am very much mistaken, those are drops of blood. Some one has been hurt. There it is again! A cry for aid."

"Sir—wee! Sir—witz! Help! Help!" Faint as was the voice the words were quite clear. Who could it be and where was he?

As far as Peter could see nothing was in sight but the white snow, the trees and a bush here and there. Then it seemed to the boy that the voice came from behind the rose bush. And he hurried around to the other side. What a sight met his eyes. There, on the ground with his wings out stretched and with a great gaping wound in his side, lay Song Sparrow. Peter knew him at once by his soft brown feathers and the large spot on his breast.

"Dear old friend, what has happened to you?" cried Peter, running over and dropping on one knee beside the wounded bird. "Have you, like Mrs. Bluebird, been shot, too?"

"No, not shot, but stabbed," murmured Song Sparrow, "but nobody was to blame but myself. I went to the brook to get a drink and I found a little spot near the shore from which the sun had melted the ice. Then I knew that spring was on its way and I was so happy that I just had to fly up on the fence rail and sing my cheer song—you remember how it goes—'cheer, cheer' spring will soon be here.' I was so excited that I didn't watch where I was flying and as I turned to go I ran into a sharp nail that was half hidden by the snow and tore a great hole in my side."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD IS WONDERFUL—The Lord preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow; but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down.—Psalm 146:9.

OHIO JURIST IN LIMELIGHT

Carrington T. Marshall's analysis of "Liberty Under Law in America" is attracting considerable attention among social workers, lawyers, and ministers, particularly because of the similarity of its conclusions to those contained in the booklet, "What about Prohibition and the Law of My Country?" which represents the joint authorship and approval of 25 leaders of young people in the principal youth organizations of the country.

As chief justice of the Ohio supreme court, Mr. Marshall brings the experience and training of a long career to the consideration of law as related to liberty, and his conclusion is, "If certain of our laws cannot be enforced, none of our laws can be enforced."

Harry N. Holmes of the World Alliance of International Friendship heads the Commission on Youth and Law Observance, whose membership includes governors and noted business men and ministers. The youth's commission's booklet states, "The Eighteenth Amendment will make more trouble for the communities that ignore it than for those that try to enforce it. Considering the way in which prohibition was adopted and established in the Constitution, there is no practical way to change it that is acceptable to anyone who has a serious concern for the public welfare." The commission adds, "We must reserve, of course, the right and duty of all citizens to join in repealing the Amendment itself if ultimately it should appear to be socially ineffectual and undesirable, but there is no honorable alternative to acceptance of the law substantially as it is except a frank and frontal attack on the Amendment itself."

"The people are sovereign and the officials are the servants of the sovereign people," writes Justice Marshall. "Hence, the people are responsible for the character and quality of government. Let it be known that the people are alert and prompt to repudiate an official who violates his oath of office, and corruption in government will gradually but surely disappear."

Noting that the eighteenth amendment was adopted by a two-thirds vote, the jurist states, "The unwillingness of a portion of the people to submit to majority rule is a thrust at the Constitution itself." Justice Marshall estimates that 140,000 murderers remain at large and unpunished in the United States, and that not less than 500,000 persons are pursuing lives of crime. The people, he says, should exercise more care in the selection of public officials and should insist on proper enforcement of all laws.

Many politicians who could not get elected to office, have decided that they do not want such honors.

In an argument it is futile to stake your prejudice against the other fellow's common sense.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Way of the World

SEA POWER

Carthage, Greece, Rome, each in her day, ruled the Mediterranean sea. With sea power went world power, expanded trade and civilization. Those who read their history well, know that America should have the world's foremost merchant marine if she is to be dominant in commerce and a leader among the nations. Admiral Plunkett is right when he says our prosperity and our productivity propel us toward the rule of the seas. But we don't need a battleship for every tradeship.

THE HOPE

Nobody who knows boys and girls can feel depressed about the future of America. The hope of the land lies in what we are doing to build up youngsters into good citizens. The greatest agency for the work is the Y. M. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. is inter-denominational. Catholics, Jews, Protestants, foreigners, native Americans — all are eligible to membership. All share the religious, educational and physical privileges of this greatest of all organizations of its kind.

Money given to the Y. M. C. A. is money spent to make a greater America.

* * *

REVENGE

The meanest motive man can have for his acts is the motive of revenge. It harks back to his animal ancestry. It shows that he is far from completely humanized. Men suddenly lifted to high office and who make their first duty the firing of their enemies, are simply in an incompletely civilized state.

WISE

The Irish Free State spends 20 per cent of the taxes it collects on education. When some other countries realize that the money spent on schoolhouses and education is an investment and not a luxury, they will make a better use of their taxes. A new government has the benefit of the experience of older nations. Ireland is worth watching. Irishmen are never afraid of change, and they are not often sleepy.

DIALING

"No matter where you turn the dial," says Senator Smith, of South Carolina, "you get the same tin pan noise. It is varied only by an occasional announcement about a spark plug. I am through trying."

Radio listeners, some of them, will be sympathetic. But the senator is unduly severe. The quality of radio programs has improved. There are more artists of note and more addresses worth listening to. Public taste improves—in spite of everything. And when the demand is what it ought to be, the product will have to measure up.

The Daybook of a New Yorker

—By— BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. — It became worse than banal to talk of the swarms of impoverished entities of bygone years now enjoying oblivion in the squalor of the poorer sections of New York. Yet the following story recommends itself, if only because it is too romantically maudlin not to be true.

When a woman named Anastasis Tchaikovsky arrived in New York and announced herself to be the Grand Duchess Anastasia, only living daughter of the late Czar Nicholas, the tabloids searched about for persons who could prove or disprove the claim. They found Iliadore, the "mad Monk," once the confessor and theological teacher of the Russian Royal Family, working as a porter for twenty-four dollars a week. One tab persuaded him to do a series of articles, disproving the alleged Grand Duchess' assertions, and agreed to pay him a good round sum for the same.

Then the difficulty arose. The monk, through his interpreter, spoke as follows: "My employer has heard that I am to write for your paper, which he dislikes very much. He says he will no longer employ me as his porter if I do not give up the project. So I am afraid I shall have to give it up."

The man who had once been head of the orthodox Russian church had to be assured that he would be found another job as porter, before he would continue.

Credit the best wheeze of recent weeks to Sophie Tucker. Says Sophie: "When better men are made, I'll 'make' 'em!"

Prolific and almost universal eccentricities makes a New York daily column, such as this one, possible. For example, should one enter a store titled "William Debitt, Steamfitter," on upper Third avenue, it will be best to ask, not for steamfitting, but for books. For Debitt deals mostly in rare volumes and pictures.

It seems that, steamfitter though he was, Mr. Debitt's soul nevertheless always yearned for art. So he began to collect books. When his home began to belch dusty tomes, according to Mr. Debitt's own story, Mrs. Debitt put her foot down. Mrs. Debitt said: "Bill, you'll have to do something with those books. I can't have 'em cluttering up my house any longer."

So for want of anything better to do, Bill started moving them down to his store. And customers began to buy more books than they did steamfitting. Now, Bill does an occasional job at his own trade, just to keep his hand in. And absent-minded fellow that he is, Mr. Debitt has never changed the "Steamfitting" on his window to "Books."

No doubt the story about the professor who conducted a test to establish the relative reaction of blonds and brunettes to amorous stimuli has been broadcast. To those who came in late, I explain that the professor noted the blood pressure of the girls as they watched a movie in which hearty necking was portrayed. The test was held in a theatre here. And the professor announced that his experiment showed that brunettes were much more sensitive than blonds. The three flaxen-haired girls showed comparatively little reaction. It seems to me that the learned man might have been a bit more scientific in his experiment. Could he not have tested the ladies' hair to find out if the color was natural? For, as it happens, two of the blonds were born brunettes and transformed by peroxide.

Kellygrams

MEN'S LIKES AND DISLIKES

It appears that business men are fond of music. Just put the word "Music" on an announcement of a business gathering, and with all other factors equal, about one-fifth more persons will come than if you had said nothing about any music. The average business man would rather be entertained than instructed.

Next to being entertained, however, a business man would rather hear a discussion of some phase of business in which he himself is especially interested. After that his favorite topics are those dealing with either politics or finance.

Two speakers usually attract a bigger audience of business men than only one, but three will not attract as many as two. You see, it is impossible to pick one man who will appeal to everybody, but with two speakers there is a chance that those who do not care for one will like the other. Three talkers, though, scare a certain percentage of men away, because they fear at least one, if not all three speakers, may talk too long.

Though two is the ideal number of speakers for a business men's gathering, three speakers are almost exactly the same as one in drawing power. And if there are more than three, the drawing power is in inverse ratio to the number. Not quite so many will come to hear four men talk as to hear three, and the audience will be smaller for every speaker added until, if you have enough speakers, there will not be any audience at all.

The first thing the future blaze battlers want to learn is how to play checkers. Every student owes it to his alma mater to try for the checker varsity or at least seek a place on the pinochle squad.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THE PLASTIC AGE OF BEAUTY

Those all important years of adolenscence! They count for so much, for during this short period of time—only a few years at best—all that is strong and beautiful and fine can be cultivated in your daughter. All that you do for her, all that you teach her, will bear direct relationship to what she becomes when her womanhood dawns. It is for you to direct her "reluctant feet" toward health, loviness and a sturdy, splendid character. Are you doing it? Nowhere in the world can a mother give more to her daughter than here in America, and nowhere in the world are mothers less sensible in developing the natural heritage of their children.

Does that seem a startling statement to you? Let me tell you a little about the continental mother—of the time, the careful consideration, the intelligent thought she gives to her daughter's future. Do you think she waits for the fairy tale awakening, when overnight the ugly duckling turns to a beautiful swan? Not she! She knows life too well. She knows that the human ugly duckling does not undergo a metamorphosis. That unless her talent points of charm are patiently and skillfully cultivated, she will never bloom to radiant womanhood. She knows, too, that the sensitive mind of a little girl may suffer tortures through a sense of physical inferiority—and that her whole life may be blighted by the shyness, the awkwardness and the lack of poise which so often result.

MENU HINT

I am again giving a whole day's menu, and it contains some new ways of serving some of our old food favorites. The grapefruit served with canned strawberries makes a very different dish than the usual breakfast grapefruit. Better file the tomato recipe for use in canning season.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Strawberry Special — Pare one large grapefruit, cutting off all the white membane; remove each section separately and cut into rather small pieces. Add one cup canned strawberries and one tablespoon sugar. Prepare the evening before using.

Bright-Eye Salad — Grate raw carrots and put in center of salad plate; surround with finely shredded cabbage and sprinkle with salt. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Luncheon Tomatoes—These are prepared at canning time. Select tomatoes that will slip into a jar easily without being cut. Scald and remove skins. Pack into hot sterilized jars; add one teaspoon of salt and fill with boiling water. Seal, test for leaks, then set jar into a vessel containing enough boiling water to cover the jar one-half inch or more. Cover tightly and let stand until water is cool. Remove jar, wipe and store.

Put up in this way the tomatoes remain quite firm—they look like fresh—and are fine for salads. We eat them with the addition of a little sugar. The liquid may be drunk or put into the soup pot.

WASHINGTON PIE
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Three eggs, one cup pulyerized sugar, one cup flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs light, add sugar and a few grains of salt; beat until light and foamy; add flour, baking powder and vanilla. Bake in quick oven. Make a soft custard, adding white of egg last. Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. — Once, a Republican was a Republican and a Democrat was a Democrat. Take a look at two groups of 'em today and you can't tell which is which, they're so jumbled up.

Yet authorities there be who say they'd sort 'emselves out, if offered a choice between a real Republican candidate and a real Democrat.

It would seem as if this would be a good thing, for why vote?—if you don't know which side you're voting on. Thus reasoning, about half of us don't, which, the campaign managers tell us, is deplorable, in a republic or a democracy, or whatever this is.

To effect such a re-classification, however, in the present state of confusion, our two rival condidates must be, each, a most pronounced unmistakable type of his wn particular breed of cats—a Republican Alexander Hamilton would o. k., and a Democrat Jefferson would endorse.

Not all of our current presidential possibilities fill this bill.

For instance, we have southern Democrats who'd plunk for Frank Willis against Al Smith; seaboard Republicans who fancy Smith above Willis.

So far as I can see,the cleanest-cut test in the coming election would be between Senator Curtis of Kansas and Reed of Missouri, respectively Republican and Democrat—beyond preadventure of a doubt.

Curtis—a "big business" conservative, a high protectionist, a defender of the doctrine that whatever Washington does is right, an imperialist (which, of course, he'll deny), a dry, and a good farm reliefer, to offset, in the corn belt, his acceptability to the "intrusts" down east.

Reed—a strictly old-fashioned constitutionalist—states rights — international isolationist — a wet —tariff for revenue only — Andy Jackson up to date.

Curtis—a wily politician, who can also fight. Reed—a terrific fighter, who's also a wonder in politics.

Curtis — tactful, ingratiating. Reed — chain lightning and TNT.

Politically — poles apart.

This pair ought to sort 'em out, north and south, east and west.

Consider the others — the principal ones.

Hoover — technically a Republican, but could run on either ticket (if you don't believe it, read his book—"American Individualism" — it's good), consequent- can't possibly run, in the political sense, for president, but only for the job of nonpartisan business manager of the United States— at which, of course, he'd be a dandy, but he wouldn't sort anybody out.

Al Smith — magnetic—would attract and repel like sixty—but both, with both kinds of votes—no sorting out.

Dawes-Lowden, or Lowden-Dawes — not pronounced enough, except possibly sectionally, as to Lowden — underslung pipe and Hell-and-Maria vocabulary insufficient to sort out electorate, as to Dawes.

Al Ritchie—as genuine an original Democrat as Reed, but hasn't Reed's punch—hence couldn't sort out as many votes.

Watson and Willis—mere "favorite sons."

Norris and Borah—really belong to a separate bunch—couldn't sort out anything—might even make the mixup worse.

Of course it's a mighty long chance that both Curtis and Reed, if either, will be nominated.

But they certainly would furnish a swell contrast.

That line-up of candidates would give the voters something to vote about.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It is certainly not wrong to be good friends with your second cousin, "Miss Wondering," and if people talk, you should pay no attention.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl of 16 and have been keeping company with a young man three years my senior. I care a lot for him, but he has never shown any sign of affection for me. If he sees me home he goes as far as the door, bids be a cool good night, and departs. I wouldn't mind an occasional kiss, but he never offers any, and I wouldn't ask. How can I get him to be more affectionate?

"Kiss Proof."

Don't try. Be glad your friend thinks enough of you to treat you as he would want another chap to treat his sister. You don't know when you're well off.

"My dear Friend Mrs. Lee: I read your letters every day and enjoy them very much. I can hardly believe there are any decent fellows left like the one I read about the other day, who signed himself W. W. H. He says the girls think him too slow. In my home town they are all too fast for me.

"Lonely Adele."

I don't think you need advice, Adele. Sorry I can't give W. W. H.'s address. I certainly hope your Prince Charming comes along and will prove all that you wish, for there are fine young men in the world, I assure you. Keep hoping.

Barbara wants R. E. A. L. to read this and know that she is sorry she got mad and wrote him that she was through with him. She wants to be friends with him again, but she has another boy friend and likes them both, and what is she to do? Can't you have good times with both, Barbara? If ont you'll simply have to decide which one you likek best.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A WOUNDED WARBLER

Peter looked at the two Bluebirds as they sat upon the branch Mr. Bluebird pouring out his tale of woe in a musical solo and his gentle wife listening to him, her head pressed to his breast.

"They have so much to be thankful for," said the boy. "They are so beautiful and they love each other so much and their children are so well and strong."

"All of which is very true," agreed Snowbird. "But you see they really like to think about the sad things. I don't like to be unhappy, you know, but then that may be because I have never had much trouble in my life. I am getting hungry now, though, so if you will excuse me I will run away and try to dig up a seed or two for luncheon. Goodby, boy. You will see me again."

Peter had been long enough among the birds to realize that when they made up their minds to do a thing it was not long before they set about it. So he was not at all surprised when, without more ado off flew pretty Junco.

It was quite evident that the Bluebirds had forgotten all about him. Now, his song hushed, the gallant husband was helping his adoring little wife home. Once more the boy was left alone.

Peter walked along slowly and he had not gone very far when he came to a wild rose bush that grew near the side of the brook. There he came to a sudden stop. At first he could not have told why. Nothing was in sight and yet he had a queer feeling that something was wrong. In the snow about the rose bush were drops of something that looked red—like blood. Peter bent down to examine them closely and then his ear caught a faint sound. He listened a second, then straightened up and peered around.

"That sounded like a groan," said Peter 'aloud, "and unless I am very much mistaken, those are drops of blood. Some one has been hurt. There it is again! A cry for aid."

"Sir—wee! Sir—witz! Help! Help!" Faint as was the voice the words were quite clear. Who could it be and where was he?

As far as Peter could see nothing was in sight but the white snow, the trees and a bush here and there. Then it seemed to the boy that the voice came from behind the rose bush. And he hurried around to the other side. What a sight met his eyes. There, on the ground with his wings out stretched and with a great gaping wound in his side, lay Song Sparrow. Peter knew him at once by his soft brown feathers and the large spot on his breast.

"Dear old friend, what has happened to you?" cried Peter, running over and dropping on one knee beside the wounded bird. "Have you, like Mrs. Bluebird, been shot, too?"

"No, not shot, but stabbed," murmured Song Sparrow, "but nobody was to blame but myself. I went to the brook to get a drink and I found a little spot near the shore from which the sun had melted the ice. Then I knew that spring was on its way and I was so happy that I just had to fly up on the fence rail and sing my cheer song—you remember how it goes—'cheer, cheer' spring will soon be here.' I was so excited that I didn't watch where I was flying and as I turned to go I ran into a sharp nail that was half hidden by the snow and tore a great hole in my side."

Central Seeded In Tourney; Plays Troy First

PLAYS BUT ONE GAME IN FIRST ROUND OF DAYTON TOURNAMENT

Stivers, Steele And Springfield "Seeded" With Xenia And Springfield Chooses To Meet Steele —Bellbrook Draws Zanesfield

VIC KOLB'S Xenia Central High School basketball team is scheduled to meet Troy High School in the first round of the Class A division of the Southwestern regional state basketball tournament at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds coliseum Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock as a result of a draw made Monday night in Dayton by representatives of the fifteen schools entered in Class A.

Providing the Blue and White quintet is victorious in its opening round engagement, it will return to Dayton the following Friday, March 9, to play the winner of the Miamisburg-Bellefontaine contest at 7 p. m. in the second round.

In the event of another victory in this round, Xenia will probably clash with Stivers High School of Dayton in the semi-finals at 4 p. m., March 10.

Stivers and Steele of Dayton and Springfield and Xenia Central were the four teams "seeded" in the drawings Monday night.

Following the decision to "seed" these four teams in order to prevent an early meeting between the four admittedly strong teams entered in Class A, the question arose as to how the "seeded" schools should be paired off in the two brackets.

Stivers and Springfield were permitted to choose between Xenia and Steele for their own bracket. Springfield won the choice by a flip of a coin and immediately selected Steele for its bracket, leaving Xenia and Stivers in the lower bracket, and indicating the Springfield mentor saw in Xenia an opponent more to be feared than Steele.

Xenia is a favorite to beat Troy by virtue of an early season 40 to 17 victory over the Trojans. However, Troy has shown steady improvement and recently beat Piqua 15 to 9. As a result Xenia will take no chances of an unexpected setback.

The Blue and White squad has been allotted an hour's practice on the coliseum floor to become accustomed to this court and Coach Kolb intends to take his squad to Dayton for a short workout Tuesday night.

Other features of Monday night's drawings included the failure of the Class B representatives to "seed" any teams in this division.

In the Class B division, Bellbrook High School, Greene County Class B champion as a result of winning the annual tournament last week, drew Zanesfield as its first round opponent Friday, March 2 at 11 a. m. Bath Twp., runnerup in the county tournament, will meet Northampton at 5 p. m. Friday, while Xenia East High School will play New Paris at 7 p. m. Friday in the first round.

Bowling

LED by Peterson, who had a brilliant three-game total of 684, the champion Greene County Lumber Co. quintet won two out of three games from the Buicks in a sensational Recreation League bowling match Monday night.

Both teams were in fine form, the league-leaders toppling a total of 2,901 pins, fifty-eight below its own league record, while the losers rolled 2,695. The lumber firm won the first game, 942 to 899 and took the second 1,067 to 870. The score of 1,067 was only five pins shy of the league record for high team single game, also held by the lumber company. Buicks rolled 926 against 892 for the lumber firm to win the finale.

Peterson rolled games of 217, 254 and 213 for 684. Blackburn followed with 593 and Dice with 585. Al Regan led the Buicks with 573 followed by Donley with 568.

In the other league match the same evening, the Los Ramos Cigars climbed out of the cellar by a margin of one percentage point by defeating the Studebaker Commanders, its bedfellow, two out of three games. Last place now has a new occupant for the first time in many weeks. Studebakers won the last game despite a 255 score rolled by Highley, lead-off man for the Los Ramos team. Malavazos led the Studebakers with 613 while Highley topped the winners with 565.

LEADERS OF CHURCH LEAGUE EMPHASIZE SUPERIORITY HERE

First M. E. First M. E. Seniors broke a tie for top position in the senior class by defeating the Second U. P. Seniors 46 to 20. A tie for last place in this division was broken when the Trinity M. E. Seniors outclassed the Reformed Seniors 29 to 17.

As in the parent division, a tie for last position was shattered by the 11 to 5 victory of the First M. E. Juniors over the Second U. P. Juniors.

OHIO NORTHERN AND CEDARVILLE GIRLS PLAY 20 TO 20 TIE

Cedarville College and Ohio Northern College girls' basketball teams played to a 20 to 20 tie in an exciting game at Alford gymnasium Monday night.

Cedarville feminine tossers performed in what was undoubtedly their best form of the season and are jubilant as a result of holding the visitors on even terms.

Previously Ohio Northern had beaten Cedarville rather badly, 33 to 16 on the Northern floor.

Under girls' basketball rules, no extra playing period is permitted in the event of a tie.

Ohio Northern lassies have lost only one game this season. Cedarville has also compiled an impressive record with ten victories against only three defeats.

Kiblinger, of the visiting sextet, was high-scorer of the return contest with fourteen points, counting four baskets and six free throws. Smith, Cedarville forward, showed the way to her team with four field goals and one foul for nine points.

Ritticisms

BY BILL RITT

"From now on," the papers quote Mr. Hornsby as saying, "I am just a ball player." Well, just what was he before, anyway?

* * *

Maybe the reason Chicagoans are so sore at all foreigners is because they don't include bomb throwing in the Olympics.

* * *

Nowadays the only difference between a pro golfer and a veteran ball player down south for spring training is that the golfer shows some interest in baseball.

* * *

The main thing managers have to impress on chow chasing rookies is that "rounding into shape" does not mean acquiring a bay window.

FINKE WILL PRESENT TROPHY TO LEAGUE COURT CHAMPIONS

Karl Finke, sports editor of the Dayton Daily News, will be the principal speaker at the "trophy banquet" to be tendered Xenia Central High School's basketball squad at the school cafeteria Thursday at 6 p. m., it is announced.

Xenia obtained the first leg on the silver loving cup awarded as a trophy by the Dayton newspaper, by virtue of winning the 1927-28 championship of the Miami Valley League without the loss of a game in five played.

This trophy, which is being engraved, will be presented to the school at the banquet.

The testimonial dinner will be a public affair. Followers of the team may obtain tickets for 50 cents but the number attending will be strictly limited to 200. Tickets are on sale at Coates and Wood barber shops and Sayre and Sohn drug stores.

Members of the basketball squad will be honor guests. A chicken pie dinner will be served.

ST. BRIGID CAGERS PLAY ST. BERNARD HIGH HERE TUESDAY

St. Brigid High School will lower the curtain on its 1927-28 basketball season Tuesday night, meeting St. Bernard High School of Springfield at Central High School gymnasium.

St. Bernard presents a large assignment. The Springfield parochial school quintet was beaten by the University of Dayton Preps last week, but only a few points after a furiously-fought game.

St. Brigid's season has been productive of three victories, including a surprising but exceedingly gratifying one-point victory over Piqua Catholic Central High School, and the local tea mis anxious to wind up the schedule with a victory.

If St. Bernard is added to St. Brigid's list of basketball victims, the season will be the most successful in the school's history.

The local quintet has a happy faculty of playing at the peak of form on the home floor and a victory Tuesday night is therefore within the realm of possibility.

Three regulars on the St. Brigid quintet will be participating in their last scholastic basketball game. They are: Captain Killeen, center, Ernst, high-scoring forward, and Neville, guard.

A preliminary contest will start at 7:30 o'clock with the main game beginning about 8:15. Coach Victor Kolb, of Central High School, will referee the game.

IS MURDER SUSPECT

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—John Grecco, of this city, was held for questioning today in connection with the murder of Parmella Caruso, 26, in front of Caruso's Spaghetti House here last night. One of ten men who called to see Caruso shot him twice in the back. Police said Grecco and Caruso had been involved in a feud.

ESTABLISH PATROLS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 28. United States marines are establishing Patrol posts close to the Honduran frontier to prevent the smuggling of arms into Nicaragua for the followers of Gen. Augustino Sandino. The entire border cannot be covered owing to the small number of marines available for the work.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

NORTHERN SCHOOLS WILL MAKE STRONG BIDS FOR OHIO FLAG

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27—Northern Ohio high schools have some of the "flashiest" basketball teams on the floor this season than ever before witnessed in a single year, according to reports reaching the Ohio High School Athletic Association here, from scouts over the state.

Picking the winner of the state tournament from these teams, or even the victors of the semi-finals to be held throughout the state March 9 and 10, would be too much guess work, the report states. The state tournament is to be held here March 16 and 17.

The reports, however, mention probable representatives from the sectional tournaments that will compete in the semi-finals, and here and there, mention a team thought to have a good chance to put in a bid for a place in the "big" tournament.

Collingwood High of Cleveland has won fifteen straight victories. A rule in effect there may, however, prevent them from participating in any tournaments.

Seventeen and fifteen consecutive wins for Akron West and Akron Central, respectively, almost assures these two teams chances of putting in their bid for the state championship by "coming through" in the semi-final tournament of their section.

According to reports a list of the best teams in northwestern Ohio would read something like this: Akron West—1st; Akron Central—2nd; Massillon—3rd; McKinley of Canton—4th, and Rayon of Youngstown—5th.

The eyes of the high school athletic world are focused on the outcome of the sectional tournament to be held at Bryan March 2 and 3, when three of the strongest teams in that part of the state clash. Defiance Napoleon and Bryan Highs have more than average teams on the floor this year. Only two of these teams can compete in the semi-final at Findlay March 9 and 10, and according to present indications, it looks as if Napoleon will stay at home.

In the Bowling Green district Bowling Green and Lima Central are said to have the best teams. These two teams will probably meet Defiance and Bryan at the Findlay semi-final, by winning a place in their sectional tournament.

Playing three overtime periods, Sandusky defeated Fremont High by a single point. Sandusky is said to have the best team, and what is more, a fair chance to compete in the state championship meet here, by winning in the semi-finals.

Bucyrus High, champions of the North Central League have the best chance for "cup" honors in their district, the reports said.

These reports, though a little premature, are thought to state fairly accurately the basketball situation in northern Ohio.

Providing the Blue and White quintet is victorious in its opening round engagement, it will return to Dayton the following Friday, March 9, to play the winner of the Miamisburg-Bellefontaine contest at 7 p. m. in the second round.

In the event of another victory in this round, Xenia will probably clash with Stivers High School of Dayton in the semi-finals at 4 p. m., March 10.

Stivers and Steele of Dayton and Springfield and Xenia Central were the four teams "seeded" in the drawings Monday night.

Following the decision to "seed" these four teams in order to prevent an early meeting between the four admittedly strong teams entered in Class A, the question arose as to how the "seeded" schools should be paired off in the two brackets.

Stivers and Springfield were permitted to choose between Xenia and Steele for their own bracket. Springfield won the choice by a flip of a coin and immediately selected Steele for its bracket, leaving Xenia and Stivers in the lower bracket, and indicating the Springfield mentor saw in Xenia an opponent more to be feared than Steele.

Xenia is a favorite to beat Troy by virtue of an early season 40 to 17 victory over the Trojans. However, Troy has shown steady improvement and recently beat Piqua 15 to 9. As a result Xenia will take no chances of an unexpected setback.

The Blue and White squad has been allotted an hour's practice on the coliseum floor to become accustomed to this court and Coach Kolb intends to take his squad to Dayton for a short workout Tuesday night.

Other features of Monday night's drawings included the failure of the Class B representatives to "seed" any teams in this division.

In the Class B division, Bellbrook High School, Greene County Class B champion as a result of winning the annual tournament last week, drew Zanesfield as its first round opponent Friday, March 2 at 11 a. m. Bath Twp., runnerup in the county tournament, will meet Northampton at 5 p. m. Friday, while Xenia East High School will play New Paris at 7 p. m. Friday in the first round.

Bowling

LED by Peterson, who had a brilliant three-game total of 684, the champion Greene County Lumber Co. quintet won two out of three games from the Buicks in a sensational Recreation League bowling match Monday night.

Both teams were in fine form, the league-leaders toppling a total of 2,901 pins, fifty-eight below its own league record, while the losers rolled 2,695. The lumber firm won the first game, 942 to 899 and took the second 1,067 to 870. The score of 1,067 was only five pins shy of the league record for high team single game, also held by the lumber company. Buicks rolled 926 against 892 for the lumber firm to win the finale.

Peterson rolled games of 217, 254 and 213 for 684. Blackburn followed with 593 and Dice with 585. Al Regan led the Buicks with 573 followed by Donley with 568.

In the other league match the same evening, the Los Ramos Cigars climbed out of the cellar by a margin of one percentage point by defeating the Studebaker Commanders, its bedfellow, two out of three games. Last place now has a new occupant for the first time in many weeks. Studebakers won the last game despite a 255 score rolled by Highley, lead-off man for the Los Ramos team. Malavazos led the Studebakers with 613 while Highley topped the winners with 565.

OHIO NORTHERN AND CEDARVILLE GIRLS PLAY 20 TO 20 TIE

Cedarville College and Ohio Northern College girls' basketball teams played to a 20 to 20 tie in an exciting game at Alford gymnasium Monday night.

Cedarville feminine tossers performed in what was undoubtedly their best form of the season and are jubilant as a result of holding the visitors on even terms.

Previously Ohio Northern had beaten Cedarville rather badly, 33 to 16 on the Northern floor.

Under girls' basketball rules, no extra playing period is permitted in the event of a tie.

Ohio Northern lassies have lost only one game this season. Cedarville has also compiled an impressive record with ten victories against only three defeats.

Kiblinger, of the visiting sextet, was high-scorer of the return contest with fourteen points, counting four baskets and six free throws. Smith, Cedarville forward, showed the way to her team with four field goals and one foul for nine points.

Ritticisms

BY BILL RITT

"From now on," the papers quote Mr. Hornsby as saying, "I am just a ball player." Well, just what was he before, anyway?

* * *

Maybe the reason Chicagoans are so sore at all foreigners is because they don't include bomb throwing in the Olympics.

* * *

Nowadays the only difference between a pro golfer and a veteran ball player down south for spring training is that the golfer shows some interest in baseball.

The main thing managers have to impress on chow chasing rookies is that "rounding into shape" does not mean acquiring a bay window.

LEADERS OF CHURCH LEAGUE EMPHASIZE SUPERIORITY HERE

First M. E. Church Seniors and Reformed Church Juniors are undisputed possessors of first place in the senior and junior divisions, respectively, of the Sunday School Basketball League, as a result of victories over opponents with which they were formerly tied in the fourth round of play in the league at Central High School gymnasium Monday night.

First M. E. Seniors broke a tie for top position in the senior class by defeating the Second U. P. Seniors 46 to 20. A tie for last place in this division was broken when the Trinity M. E. Seniors outclassed the Reformed Seniors 29 to 17.

As in the parent division, a tie for last position was shattered by the 11 to 5 victory of the First M. E. Juniors over the Second U. P. Juniors.

IS MURDER SUSPECT

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—John Grecco, of this city, was held for questioning today in connection with the murder of Parmella Caruso, 26, in front of Caruso's Spaghetti House here last night. Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

FINKE WILL PRESENT TROPHY TO LEAGUE COURT CHAMPIONS

Karl Finke, sports editor of the Dayton Daily News, will be the principal speaker at the "trophy banquet" to be tendered Xenia Central High School's basketball squad at the school cafeteria Thursday at 6 p. m., it is announced.

Xenia obtained the first leg on the silver loving cup awarded as a trophy by the Dayton newspaper, by virtue of winning the 1927-28 championship of the Miami Valley League without the loss of a game in five played.

This trophy, which is being engraved, will be presented to the school at the banquet.

The testimonial dinner will be a public affair. Followers of the team may obtain tickets for 50 cents but the number attending will be strictly limited to 200. Tickets are on sale at Coates and Wood barber shops and Sayre and Sohn drug stores.

Members of the basketball squad will be honor guests. A chicken pie dinner will be served.

ST. BRIGID CAGERS PLAY ST. BERNARD HIGH HERE TUESDAY

St. Brigid High School will lower the curtain on its 1927-28 basketball season Tuesday night, meeting St. Bernard High School of Springfield at Central High School gymnasium.

St. Bernard presents a large assignment. The Springfield parochial school quintet was beaten by the University of Dayton Preps last week, but only a few points after a furiously-fought game.

St. Brigid's season has been productive of three victories, including a surprising but exceedingly gratifying one-point victory over Piqua Catholic Central High School, and the local tea mig anxious to wind up the schedule with a victory.

If St. Bernard is added to St. Brigid's list of basketball victims, the season will be the most successful in the school's history.

The local quintet has a happy faculty of playing at the peak of form on the home floor and a victory Tuesday night is therefore within the realm of possibility.

Three regulars on the St. Brigid quintet will be participating in their last scholastic basketball game. They are: Captain Killeen, center, Ernst, high-scoring forward, and Neville, guard.

A preliminary contest will start at 7:30 o'clock with the main game beginning about 8:15. Coach Victor Kolb, of Central High School, will referee the game.

NORTHERN SCHOOLS WILL MAKE STRONG BIDS FOR OHIO FLAG

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27—Northern Ohio high schools have some of the "flashiest" basketball teams on the floor this season than ever before witnessed in a single year, according to reports reaching the Ohio High School Athletic Association here, from scouts over the state.

Picking the winner of the state tournament from these teams, or even the victors of the semi-finals to be held throughout the state March 9 and 10, would be too much guess work, the report states. The state tournament is to be held here March 16 and 17.

The reports, however, mention probable representatives from the sectional tournaments that will compete in the semi-finals, and here and there, mention a team thought to have a good chance to put in a bid for a place in the "big" tournament.

Collingwood High of Cleveland has won fifteen straight victories. A rule in effect there may, however, prevent them from participating in any tournaments.

Seventeen and fifteen consecutive wins for Akron West and Akron Central, respectively, almost assures these two teams chances of putting in their bid for the state championship by "coming through" in the semi-final tournament of their section.

According to reports a list of the best teams in northwestern Ohio would read something like this: Akron West—1st; Akron Central—2nd; Massillon—3rd; McKinley of Canton—4th, and Rayon of Youngstown—5th.

The eyes of the high school athletic world are focused on the outcome of the sectional tournament to be held at Bryan March 2 and 3, when three of the strongest teams in that part of the state clash. Defiance Napoleon and Bryan Highs have more than average teams on the floor this year. Only two of these teams can compete in the semi-final at Findlay March 9 and 10, and according to present indications, it looks as if Napoleon will stay at home.

In the Bowling Green district Bowling Green and Lima Central are said to have the best teams. These two teams will probably meet Defiance and Bryan at the Findlay semi-final, by winning a place in their sectional tournament.

Playing three overtime periods, Sandusky defeated Fremont High by a single point. Sandusky is said to have the best team, and what is more, a fair chance to compete in the state championship meet here, by winning in the semi-finals.

Bucyrus High, champions of the North Central League have the best chance for "cup" honors in their district, the reports said.

These reports, though a little pre-season are thought to state fairly accurately the basketball situation in northern Ohio.

HEROES OF THRILLING SEA RESCUE

After being swept from the deck of the tender Corona at Bermuda, Mrs Luther Z. Rosser was rescued by the daring work of R. C. Higgins and Captain McQuinn. The Corona was bringing a load of tourists from the shore, to the Anchor liner California, when a huge wave carried Mrs. Rosser off the deck. R. C. Higgins immediately dove overboard and reached the woman's side while Captain McQuinn cleverly manipulated the Corona to find them in the growing darkness.

FILM SCENE THAT STARTED BIG ROW

Above is a "still" from the motion picture "Dawn," depicting the death of Edith Cavell, British nurse executed by the Germans in Belgium during the World War. German protests against the showing of the picture on the ground that it would only promote ill-feeling between the once enemy nations, have been effective and the English Board of Censors has decided against permitting "Dawn" to be exhibited. The "still" that particularly aroused objections shows an officer ready to shoot Nurse Cavell after she had fainted in front of the firing squad.

Drives Too Fast

Frank Lockhart, internationally famous race driver of Indianapolis, is none the worse after his car turned a somersault and plunged into the surf at Daytona Beach, Fla., while going 225 miles an hour at the high speed trials.

UNEMPLOYMENT HAS INCREASED NEED OF HELP SAYS LEAGUE

"Owing to unemployment, the winter of 1927-28 has required the greatest amount of charity in the thirteen years of the League's existence," Mrs. George C. Stokes, executive secretary, declared in submitting her annual report to the executive board of the Social Service League at City Hall, Monday night.

One hundred and seventy-three families were dealt with, besides sixty-five transients and seventeen travelers aid cases. Xenia City funds amounting to $1,352.17 were disbursed for coal, groceries, medicine and ambulance hire.

The League spent $355 for milk for the tubercular and undernourished and to supplement the food supply in some destitute homes. Clothing and shoes were given and obtained for the needy, valued at $1,178.00. One hundred and thirty-one dollars were received from the sale of clothing and shoes.

One hundred and sixty-nine dollars were spent for rent for two widows with large families of young children. Five hundred calls were made by the secretary and 3,915 were received at the League office.

The Reformed, Second U. P., First U. P., Trinity and Presbyterian Churches and Beaver Missionary Society sewed for the League, the Reformed Church leading with the Second U. P. Church a close second in the amount of sewing accomplished.

The League co-operated in welfare work with sixteen city organizations, eight county and thirty-one other city organizations.

The causes for relief and service given were: general illness, tuberculosis, epilepsy, cancer, venereal, paralysis, blindness, mental illness injury, feeble-mindedness, divorce or separation, too large a family for the income, general shiftlessness, old age, extravagance, crime, widow with small children, widower with small children, unemployment, intemperance, unmarried mother, and children refusing to care for aged parents.

During January the League dealt with ninety-four families, eleven single men and women and fifteen transients. Ninety-five of these cases were given relief in some form, including groceries, coal, clothing, shoes, medicine, physician's services, milk, bedding and rent.

Ten cases, upon investigation, were refused. The total amount of city funds disbursed was $278.95. Many things were donated to the League.

Miss Jennie Moffett, public health nurse, in submitting her annual report, announced that she had cared for 284 cases during the year, in 153 families, making 2,180 calls with 181 calls in an average month.

Sick room equipment was given thirty-three families and 1,615 pages of health literature were distributed.

Mrs. Agnes Hurley, school attendance officer, gave a short talk before the board, concerning her work and the need of welfare work in the city.

UNEMPLOYMENT HAS INCREASED NEED OF HELP SAYS LEAGUE

"Owing to unemployment, the winter of 1927-28 has required the greatest amount of charity in the thirteen years of the League's existence," Mrs. George C. Stokes, executive secretary, declared in submitting her annual report to the executive board of the Social Service League at City Hall, Monday night.

One hundred and seventy-three families were dealt with, besides sixty-five transients and seventeen travelers aid cases. Xenia City funds amounting to $1,352.17 were disbursed for coal, groceries, medicine and ambulance hire.

The League spent $355 for milk for the tubercular and undernourished and to supplement the food supply in some destitute homes. Clothing and shoes were given and obtained for the needy, valued at $1,178.00. One hundred and thirty-one dollars were received from the sale of clothing and shoes.

One hundred and sixty-nine dollars were spent for rent for two widows with large families of young children. Five hundred calls were made by the secretary and 3,915 were received at the League office.

The Reformed, Second U. P., First U. P., Trinity and Presbyterian Churches and Beaver Missionary Society sewed for the League, the Reformed Church leading with the Second U. P. Church a close second in the amount of sewing accomplished.

The League co-operated in welfare work with sixteen city organizations, eight county and thirty-one other city organizations.

The causes for relief and service given were: general illness, tuberculosis, epilepsy, cancer, venereal, paralysis, blindness, mental illness, injury, feeble-mindedness, divorce or separation, too large a family for the income, general shiftlessness, old age, extravagance, crime, widow with small children, widower with small children, unemployment, intemperance, unmarried mother, and children refusing to care for aged parents.

During January the League dealt with ninety-four families, eleven single men and women and fifteen transients. Ninety-five of these cases were given relief in some form, including groceries, coal, clothing, shoes, medicine, physician's services, milk, bedding and rent.

Ten cases, upon investigation, were refused. The total amount of city funds disbursed was $278.95. Many things were donated to the League.

Miss Jennie Moffett, public health nurse, in submitting her annual report, announced that she had cared for 284 cases during the year, in 153 families, making 2,180 calls with 181 calls in an average month.

Sick room equipment was given thirty-three families and 1,615 pages of health literature were distributed.

Mrs. Agnes Hurley, school attendance officer, gave a short talk before the board, concerning her work and the need of welfare work in the city.

Mrs. Emma McCalmont was elected treasurer, succeeding F. B. Clemmer, who resigned.

ALL FLAPPERS HAVE BAD MANNERS SAYS MAIDEN, AGED 105

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—Miss Mary Hogan, 105, of Chicago, calmly puffed at her corn cob pipe here today and decreed that all flappers belonged in jail.

"All flappers have bad manners—the impudent little snips with their cigarettes, gin and bad manners—they ought to be put in jail," she said.

Miss Hogan is in full possession of all her faculties, reads daily newspapers, magazines and books, keeps abreast of the times and is patiently waiting until spring so she can resume her daily walks. Not only that but she does all her own housework and washing.

"Nope, I'm not bothered with the morals of flappers but only their bad manners," she declared. "I long for the old-time girl who knew how to blush instead of neck.

"But flappers will soon be 'passe' and we'll have a quiet world again. People are going to get tired of her. For a time they thought the flappers were cute. They aren't. They're only bad mannered—smoking in public.

"It's all right to smoke, I think," she added as she puffed on her corn cob, "but never in public."

Miss Hogan, who was born in New York in 1823 said she expected to live for twenty-five years longer.

WOMAN BARRED FROM CATTLE MART

Miss Elsie Pearl Truskett

By. J. C. JOHNSEN
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—"Those cattlemen might whip their livestock but they'll not whip me without a fight."

That statement from a woman—Miss Elsie Pearl Truskett—fourteen years in the cattle business in Kansas City.

Miss Truskett, she says, was making good in the livestock business. She not only was a dealer for farmers who shipped their stock to the Kansas City market in carload lots, but she also handled train load shipments from several states. She admits she did a good business.

Came a time when Miss Truskett wanted to become a member of the Kansas City Livestock Exchange. That was seven years ago.

She was denied membership, she alleges, because she "is a woman."

So far, so good. Miss Truskett let it drop.

Later she paid $2,000 for a certificate of membership. Attempt to get the exchange to confirm transfer of the membership failed. Still Miss Truskett took the matter good naturedly.

Some time later she bought another certificate for $2,500, and again attempted to become a member of the exchange. But to no avail.

A third attempt to gain membership also failed.

"They want a fight," said Miss Truskett. "They'll get it—"

The plaintiff is the woman—Miss Truskett. The defendants are the Kansas City Livestock Exchange and thirty present and former directors of the organization.

JACK and JILL

A MODERN STORY OF LOVE AND ROMANCE
By CLIFFORD WEBB, AUTHOR OF "BROKEN THREADS" "TWIN LOVES" "THE SOB SISTER" ETC.
© 1926 THE CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, starts out on a moon-lit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival in their home town of Elliston, W. Va.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnaped by bandits, and Jack Stuart rescues her and returns her to her home.

It is the old, old story revamped Jack stops for a visit, and remains to wed the lovely Jill, and three years later three children have come to bless their home—and hard times, too.

Then comes the Great Change. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tungsten mine on a tax title, and sell a fourth interest for $100,000 to Pat Sweeney, millionaire from Chicago, and the father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike," a typical flapper, but a "square shooter," as even her enemies admit. Jill Stuart and Mike clash at their first meeting, when the wife thinks "her Jack" is too much interested in Mike.

In six months' time the Stuarts have spent more than $12,000. Jack is offered an executive position at the glass works, but says he's going into business. He inventories the family expenditures, and questions the propriety of his wife's spendings, and marital relations become strained.

Gossip links the name of Jack with Nita Ravelle: likewise Jill and Professor Le Tarte are discussed. Jill and her brother Tony accept a dancing engagement at Pittsburgh. Mike Sweeney gives a party in their honor at her home, and plans another, a limousine party for them in Pittsburgh, the next day. She ignores Amity Smythe in her invitations, after Amity throws an uncalled-for remark at Jill. Then Jill heaps coals of fire on Amity's head by asking Mike to include her in the limousine party. This is too much for the would-be hard-boiled Amity, who breaks down and weeps.

Professor Le Tarte, hopelessly intoxicated, climbs into the Stuart sedan while Jill is waiting for her husband. Jack's suspicions are again aroused. They are drifting closer to the shoals of marital strife.

At Pittsburgh Professor Le Tarte is delegated to secure three extra men to make the party even couples.

(Now Go On With The Story)

* * *

CHAPTER XXXIV

Nita Ravelle laughed softly, but the slumberous passion that lay brooding in the depths of her hypnotic eyes glowed with life.

"Are you merely curious?" she queried, "or would you really like to know?"

"Both," he replied, frankly. "Other peoples' love stories always interest me. Yours, I think, would be of special interest!"

As their glances met he seemed to see, or perhaps he actually saw, the dull glow in her black eyes kindle, to brighten into a living flame that burned its way through the ether and into his very veins, running hot through his arteries. He felt himself rising to his feet.

* * *

But she saw no reflection. Her eyes, perhaps, envisioned it, but her brain was not working in juxtaposition with her eyes. Her mind was visualizing a scene photographed on the brain's negative, a scene that had evolved itself out of the materials of her own logic and tabulated sociability. She couldn't envision that scene with her eyes, but she could visualize it on the lens in her mind.

How long she stood there would have been difficult for her to have told. Perhaps twenty minutes; maybe half an hour.

It was the physical ache that finally wakened her from the semi-conscious hypnosis of her thoughts. She knew from the stiffness of her knees that she must have been standing in the one position for many minutes.

She, too, felt the craving for a stimulant, the stimulant of a love that had grown into every crevice of her heart and soul, into every fibre of her vibrant young body—a stimulant that now was being denied her after four years and more of daily assimilation.

It had become to her the complete analogy of a habit-forming drug, this love that had been hers so long.

Who, or what had taken it from her? Was it another woman? Or, was it—the curse of Easy Money?

Before the coming of the money Jack and she had been happy in each other's love, however hard the pinch of poverty had seemed. Their babies, their love—and their trust.

And now—what? From the very day the money was placed in the bank, life to both of them had been just one endless job of pleasure seeking—a ceaseless battle for excitement. Where were the old delightful times? Where had gone the peace and joy such as they had known in the happy old working days?

How many a woman—and man—fools of fortune—have asked themselves similar questions? How many have felt the sting of the curse that follows so often in the wake of Easy Money's acquisition?

It is perhaps, much as Father Ryan told Peter Justin one day in a discussion of the topic:

"It is not the money, of course," said the priest, "but the evils that money attract. Only a few of us have the strength of character, the judgment and good sense to hold ourselves down to normal.

"And that," continued the good padre, warming to this subject, "is the greatest little secret in the world, the fundamental principal upon which all lives must operate for happiness.

"Equalization, a proper balance of all things, either in the concrete or the abstract.

"Easy Money is often the medium of dissention that enters and wrecks the happy, contented family.

"The psychology of the thing is plain.....It opens the doors to gilded evils that are locked against the fellow with the puny purse.

"Some day," concluded Father Pat, "the world will be educated up to a full understanding of this truth—that normality is the basis of all perfection in life. Excesses, the fruits of easy money, turn to bitterness and decay. They are the dead husks of disillusionment!"

"Father Pat was right," muttered Jill Stuart, half aloud. "Th' crops we reap from the follies we sow. Like the flowers that bud and bloom, then wither and blow away in the cold ashes of disillusionment!"

She clenched her fists and struck her breast in a senseless, impotent rage. She wanted to cry, to tear something. But she didn't. She got a grip on herself, and gradually her anger passed, spent itself in the melting-pot of normalcy.

She was sitting on the edge of one of the two beds, garbed in white silk pajamas, when Jack entered the room. The gold hands of her tiny silver clock on the dresser pointed to the hour of two.

He grinned, a sheepish, guilty grin, as she looked up at him. But in her eyes he read no anger, no irritableness even; only grief.

A little hurriedly, and with something like apology in his manner, Jack rendered his alibi. Inasmuch as it was partly true, it was a fairly good alibi—as alibis go. They had been—"they" being Tony, the professor and himself—in Nita Ravelle's room. "They" had rolled dice, played Black Jack—and talked. He hadn't realized until he "happened" to glance at his watch, the lateness of the hour.

Jill offered no comment on his explanation. She could have told him that Tony had stopped at her door on his way from Nita Ravelle's room, where he had left Jack and the professor. But she didn't. Nor did she mention that the professor had telephoned her shortly afterward from his own room "just to assure her that Jack would be right down." That was at 1 o'clock, she might have told him. But she didn't.

She just slipped quietly beneath the covers of the bed on which she had been sitting and closed her eyes. He spent some time under the shower, took a brisk rubdown, and then—so as not to disturb her, presumably—crawled into the other bed.

* * *

The members of Mike's party—with the exception, of course, of Jill and Tony—departed shortly after 12 o'clock luncheon on Sunday for Elliston. They bade good-bye to the two "hoofers," who watched the departure through the plate-glass window of the hotel lobby as the big limousine pulled away from the curb. A moment later and it had disappeared in the motley traffic of the narrow street in the city famous for its narrow streets.

It was a dully aching heart that Jill Stuart carried back up to her apartment on the second floor. She had observed the studied air of indifference that had marked the attitudes of Jack and Nita Ravelle toward each other. But they were poor actors, both of them, and overplayed their parts.

Days passed—as days will do, even in a small town like Elliston. Came Friday, and with it came Tony Justin, back to the home of his nativity, back to the town of tall smokestacks and glass-baking ovens.

But he came alone, did Tony. The partner of his sporadic "career" remained in the city of narrow streets, coal smoke and huge steel mills.

"But you say your contract is canceled," said Jack Stuart, who had been aroused from his "beauty" slumber at the early hour of 10 a. m., and was feeling none too sociable. Tony had come straight from the train to the Stuart apartments. Jack looked him over speculatively.

"Why didn't Jill come with you?" he wanted to know.

"Oh, I'm th' one that's let out," sniveled Tony, his manner indicating deep grievance. "Jill has a new contract. And—" he added, his voice taking on an indigo tint—"a new dancing partner! Oh, yes—indeed!" he went on quickly, in answer to his brother-in-law's inquiring look, "and I'm tellin' yuh plain, Jack, that I'm good an' sore at th' trick Jill turned. It looks a lot like th' thing was fixed!"

Be it noted, incidentally and here, that when Tony Justin became entirely sober and gave careful thought to the words he had uttered under the influence of drink and his "grievance," he tried to smooth out their effect on his sister's husband. He realized he had played the part of an utter cad.

"But — her partner!" prompted Jack, an angry light beginning to glow in his eyes, "tell me—who is this partner?"

"Why, it's that Professor Le Tarte—who else?" answered Tony, feeding his grievance with indignant recollection of the professor's quick adaptability and skill in stepping into his place. "I was sick Tuesday night—unable to go on. Then what does Jill do but up and ask him to let her get another partner and—that's what she did; called up Le Tarte!"

Radio Revue BY C.KAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The financial rewards awaiting the inventor of a useful and efficient radio device, and the fact that most of the discoveries made about radio's mysteries have been accidental, are encouraging radio "fans" to keep their eyes open. Radio science has been helped immeasurably by the thoughtful observations of home radio users, young and old.

Some one in an aimless way does something to a set, and a new effect is noted. He follows up the experiment, or reports the phenomena to an expert, and a great discovery is made. Radio's progress is due as much to this sort of happening as to the laboratory work of the scientists employed by the great companies.

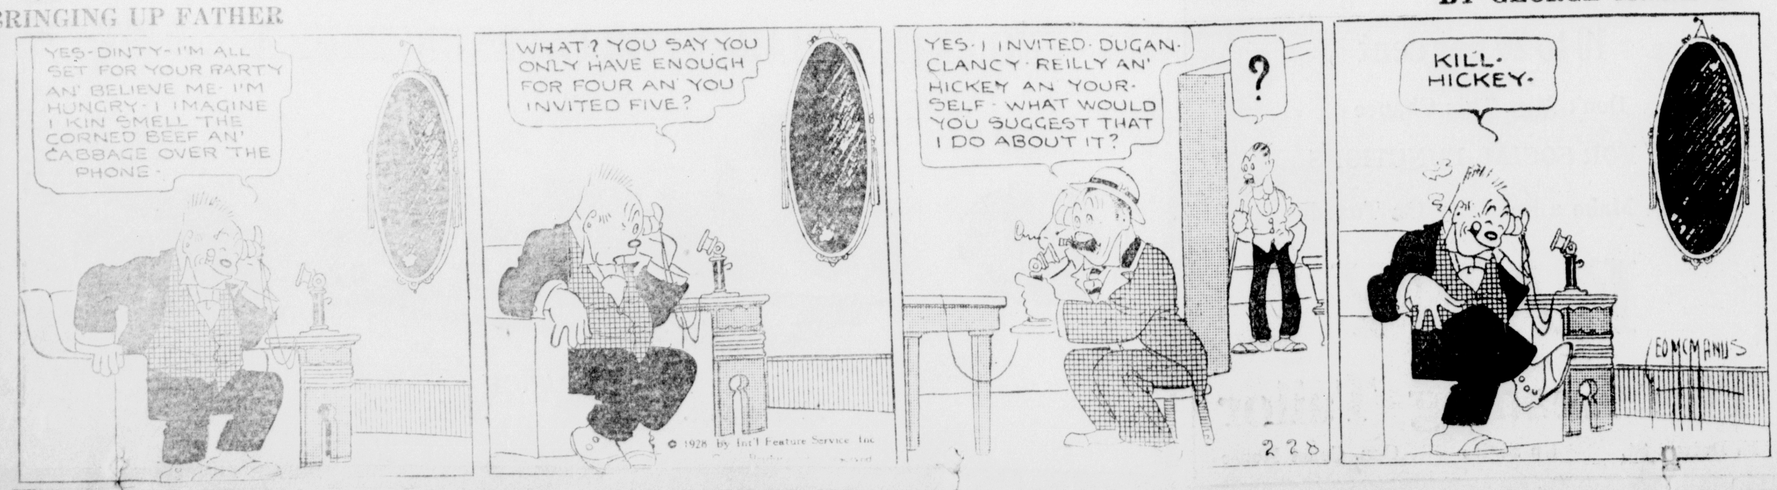

The condenser was not deliberately invented. Nobody knew what the capacity effect was until it was observed accidentally. Then it was noticed and named, and later men found out how it could be repeated. Nobody knew what regeneration was until it accidentally happened, was observed and then repeated. The fellow who first put 110 volts alternating current upon the plate of a tube probably had no idea of the consequences. In such a way it was discovered that the tube acts as a rectifier.

The other day R. T. Hurley, ignition expert of a motor meter company, observed that a spark plug acts as a miniature spark transmitting radio station, providing radiation that interferes with transmission or reception of radio aboard an airplane. As a result, experts now are busy on a plug with a rectifying quality incorporated, so as to prevent radio disturbance. Engineers believe that the change will make unnecessary the cumbersome grounded ignition shielding. These developments in the making of spark plugs probably will reduce their cost and improve their operation.

A radio engineer, in talking with some fellow workers, remarked: "Radio isn't being developed faster because most of us are following beaten paths. The fellows who get most for radio from now on, are the ones who forget the work of recent years and try something different."

The moral is: keep your eyes open.

ALL FLAPPERS HAVE BAD MANNERS SAYS MAIDEN, AGED 105

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—Miss Mary Hogan, 105, of Chicago, calmly puffed at her corn cob pipe here today and decreed that all flappers belonged in jail.

"All flappers have bad manners—the impudent little snips with their cigarettes, gin and bad manners—they ought to be put in jail," she said.

Miss Hogan is in full possession of all her faculties, reads daily newspapers, magazines and books, keeps abreast of the times and is patiently waiting until spring so she can resume her daily walks. Not only that but she does all her own housework and washing.

"Nope, I'm not bothered with the morals of flappers but only their bad manners," she declared. "I long for the old-time girl who knew how to blush instead of neck.

"But flappers will soon be 'passe' and we'll have a quiet world again. People are going to get tired of her. For a time they thought the flappers were cute. They aren't. They're only bad mannered—smoking in public.

"It's all right to smoke, I think," she added as she puffed on her corn cob, "but never in public."

Miss Hogan, who was born in New York in 1823 said she expected to live for twenty-five years longer.

WOMAN BARRED FROM CATTLE MART

Miss Elsie Pearl Truskett

By. J. C. JOHNSEN
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—"Those cattlemen might whip their livestock but they'll not whip me without a fight."

That statement from a woman—Miss Elsie Pearl Truskett—fourteen years in the cattle business in Kansas City.

Miss Truskett, she says, was making good in the livestock business. She not only was a dealer for farmers who shipped their stock to the Kansas City market in carload lots, but she also handled train load shipments from several states. She admits she did a good business.

Came a time when Miss Truskett wanted to become a member of the Kansas City Livestock Exchange. That was seven years ago.

She was denied membership, she alleges, because she "is a woman."

So far, so good. Miss Truskett let it drop.

Later she paid $2,000 for a certificate of membership. Attempt to get the exchange to confirm transfer of the membership failed. Still Miss Truskett took the matter good naturedly.

Some time later she bought another certificate for $2,500, and again attempted to become a member of the exchange. But to no avail.

A third attempt to gain membership also failed.

"They want a fight," said Miss Truskett. "They'll get it—"

The plaintiff is the woman—Miss Truskett. The defendants are the Kansas City Livestock Exchange and thirty present and former directors of the organization.

IS RE-APPOINTED AS HOME TRUSTEE

MRS. VAN EATON

Mrs. J. S. Van Eaton was re-appointed to her second term as a member of the Board of Trustees, Greene County Children's Home, by the County Commissioners Saturday.

The personnel of the board is as follows: Mrs. Van Eaton, James A. Carper, W. J. Cherry and J. G. Dixon. Mrs. Van Eaton's term is for four years.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, starts out on a moon-lit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival in their home town of Elliston, W. Va.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnaped by bandits, and Jack Stuart rescues her and returns her to her home.

It is the old, old story revamped. Jack stops for a visit, and remains to wed the lovely Jill, and three years later three children have come to bless their home—and hard times, too.

Then comes the Great Change. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tungsten mine on a tax title, and sell a fourth interest for $100,000 to Pat Sweeney, millionaire from Chicago, and the father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike," a typical flapper, but a "square shooter," as even her enemies admit. Jill Stuart and Mike clash at their first meeting, when the wife thinks "her Jack" is too much interested in Mike.

In six months' time the Stuarts have spent more than $12,000. Jack is offered an executive position at the glass works, but says he's going into business. He inventories the family expenditures, and questions the propriety of his wife's spendings, and marital relations become strained.

Gossip links the name of Jack with Nita Ravelle; likewise Jill and Professor Le Tarte are discussed. Jill and her brother Tony accept a dancing engagement at Pittsburgh. Mike Sweeney gives a party in their honor at her home, and plans another, a limousine party for them in Pittsburgh, the next day. She ignores Amity Smythe in her invitations, after Amity throws an uncalled-for remark at Jill. Then Jill heaps coals of fire on Amity's head by asking Mike to include her in the limousine party. This is too much for the would-be hard-boiled Amity, who breaks down and weeps.

Professor Le Tarte, hopelessly intoxicated, climbs into the Stuart sedan while Jill is waiting for her husband. Jack's suspicions are again aroused. They are drifting closer to the shoals of marital strife.

At Pittsburgh Professor Le Tarte is delegated to secure three extra men to make the party even couples.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXIV

Nita Ravelle laughed softly, but the slumberous passion that lay brooding in the depths of her hypnotic eyes glowed with life.

"Are you merely curious?" she queried, "or would you really like to know?"

"Both," he replied, frankly. "Other peoples' love stories always interest me. Yours, I think, would be of special interest!"

As their glances met he seemed to see, or perhaps he actually saw, the dull glow in her black eyes kindle, to brighten into a living flame that burned its way through the ether and into his very veins, running hot through his arteries. He felt himself rising to his feet.

* * *

But she saw no reflection. Her eyes, perhaps, envisioned it, but her brain was not working in juxtaposition with her eyes. Her mind was visualizing a scene photographed on the brain's negative, a scene that had evolved itself out of the materials of her own logic and tabulated sociability. She couldn't envision that scene with her eyes, but she could visualize it on the lens in her mind.

How long she stood there would have been difficult for her to have told. Perhaps twenty minutes; maybe half an hour.

It was the physical ache that finally wakened her from the semi-conscious hypnosis of her thoughts. She knew from the stiffness of her knees that she must have been standing in the one position for many minutes.

She, too, felt the craving for a stimulant, the stimulant of a love that had grown into every crevice of her heart and soul, into every fibre of her vibrant young body—a stimulant that now was being denied her after four years and more of daily assimilation.

It had become to her the complete analogy of a habit-forming drug, this love that had been hers so long.

Who, or what had taken it from her? Was it another woman? Or, was it—the curse of Easy Money?

Before the coming of the money Jack and she had been happy in each other's love, however hard the pinch of poverty had seemed. Their babies, their love—and their trust.

And now—what? From the very day the money was placed in the bank, life to both of them had been just one endless job of pleasure seeking—a ceaseless battle for excitement. Where were the old delightful times? Where had gone the peace and joy such as they had known in the happy old working days?

How many a woman—and man—fools of fortune—have asked themselves similar questions? How many have felt the sting of the curse that follows so often in the wake of Easy Money's acquisition?

It is perhaps, much as Father Ryan told Peter Justin one day in a discussion of the topic:

"It is not the money, of course," said the priest, "but the evils that money attract. Only a few of us have the strength of character, the judgment and good sense to hold ourselves down to normal.

"And that," continued the good padre, warming to this subject, "is the greatest little secret in the world, the fundamental principal upon which all lives must operate for happiness.

"Equalization, a proper balance of all things, either in the concrete or the abstract.

"Easy Money is often the medium of dissention that enters and wrecks the happy, contented family.

"The psychology of the thing is plain..... It opens the doors to gilded evils that are locked against the fellow with the puny purse.

"Some day," concluded Father Pat, "the world will be educated up to a full understanding of this truth—that normality is the basis of all perfection in life. Excesses, the fruits of easy money, turn to bitterness and decay. They are the dead husks of disillusionment!"

"Father Pat was right," muttered Jill Stuart, half aloud. "Th' crops we reap from the follies we sow. Like the flowers that bud and bloom, then wither and blow away in the cold ashes of disillusionment!"

She clenched her fists and struck her breast in a senseless, impotent rage. She wanted to cry, to tear something. But she didn't. She got a grip on herself, and gradually her anger passed, spent itself in the melting-pot of normalcy.

She was sitting on the edge of one of the two beds, garbed in white silk pajamas, when Jack entered the room. The gold hands of her tiny silver clock on the dresser pointed to the hour of two.

He grinned, a sheepish, guilty grin, as she looked up at him. But in her eyes he read no anger, no irritableness even; only grief.

A little hurriedly, and with something like apology in his manner, Jack rendered his alibi. Inasmuch as it was partly true, it was a fairly good alibi—as alibis go. They had been—"they" being Tony, the professor and himself—in Nita Ravelle's room. "They" had rolled dice, played Black Jack—and talked. He hadn't realized until he "happened" to glance at his watch, the lateness of the hour.

Jill offered no comment on his explanation. She could have told him that Tony had stopped at her door on his way from Nita Ravelle's room, where he had left Jack and the professor. But she didn't. Nor did she mention that the professor had telephoned her shortly afterward from his own room "just to assure her that Jack would be right down." That was at 1 o'clock, she might have told him. But she didn't.

She just slipped quietly beneath the covers of the bed on which she had been sitting and closed her eyes. He spent some time under the shower, took a brisk rubdown, and then—so as not to disturb her, presumably—crawled into the other bed.

* * *

The members of Mike's party—with the exception, of course, of Jill and Tony—departed shortly after 12 o'clock luncheon on Sunday for Elliston. They bade good-bye to the two "hoofers," who watched their departure through the plate-glass window of the hotel lobby as the big limousine pulled away from the curb. A moment later and it had disappeared in the motley traffic of the narrow street in the city famous for its narrow streets.

It was a dully aching heart that Jill Stuart carried back up to her apartment on the second floor. She had observed the studied air of indifference that had marked the attitudes of Jack and Nita Ravelle toward each other. But they were poor actors, both of them, and overplayed their parts.

Days passed—as days will do, even in a small town like Elliston. Came Friday, and with it came Tony Justin, back to the home of his nativity, back to the town of tall smokestacks and glass-baking ovens.

But he came alone, did Tony. The partner of his sporadic "career" remained in the city of narrow streets, coal smoke and huge steel mills.

"But you say your contract is canceled," said Jack Stuart, who had been aroused from his "beauty" slumber at the early hour of 10 a. m., and was feeling none too sociable. Tony had come straight from the train to the Stuart apartments. Jack looked him over speculatively.

"Why didn't Jill come with you?" he wanted to know.

"Oh, I'm th' one that's let out," sniveled Tony, his manner indicating deep grievance. "Jill has a new contract. And—" he added, his voice taking on an indigo tint—"a new dancing partner! Oh, yes—indeed!" he went on quickly, in answer to his brother-in-law's inquiring look, "and I'm tellin' yuh plain, Jack, that I'm good an' sore at th' trick Jill turned. It looks a lot like th' thing was fixed!"

Be it noted, incidentally and here, that when Tony Justin became entirely sober and gave careful thought to the words he had uttered under the influence of drink and his "grievance," he tried to smooth out their effect on his sister's husband. He realized he had played the part of an utter cad.

"But — her partner!" prompted Jack, an angry light beginning to glow in his eyes, "tell me—who is this partner?"

"Why, it's that Professor Le Tarte—who else?" answered Tony, feeding his grievance with indignant recollection of the professor's quick adaptability and skill in stepping into his place. "I was sick Tuesday night—unable to go on. Then what does Jill do but up and ask him to let her get another partner and—that's what she did; called up Le Tarte!"

Radio Revue BY C.KAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The financial rewards awaiting the inventor of a useful and efficient radio device, and the fact that most of the discoveries made about radio's mysteries have been accidental, are encouraging radio "fans" to keep their eyes open. Radio science has been helped immeasurably by the thoughtful observations of home radio users, young and old.

Some one in an aimless way does something to a set, and a new effect is noted. He follows up the experiment, or reports the phenomena to an expert, and a great discovery is made. Radio's progress is due as much to this sort of happening as to the laboratory work of the scientists employed by the great companies.

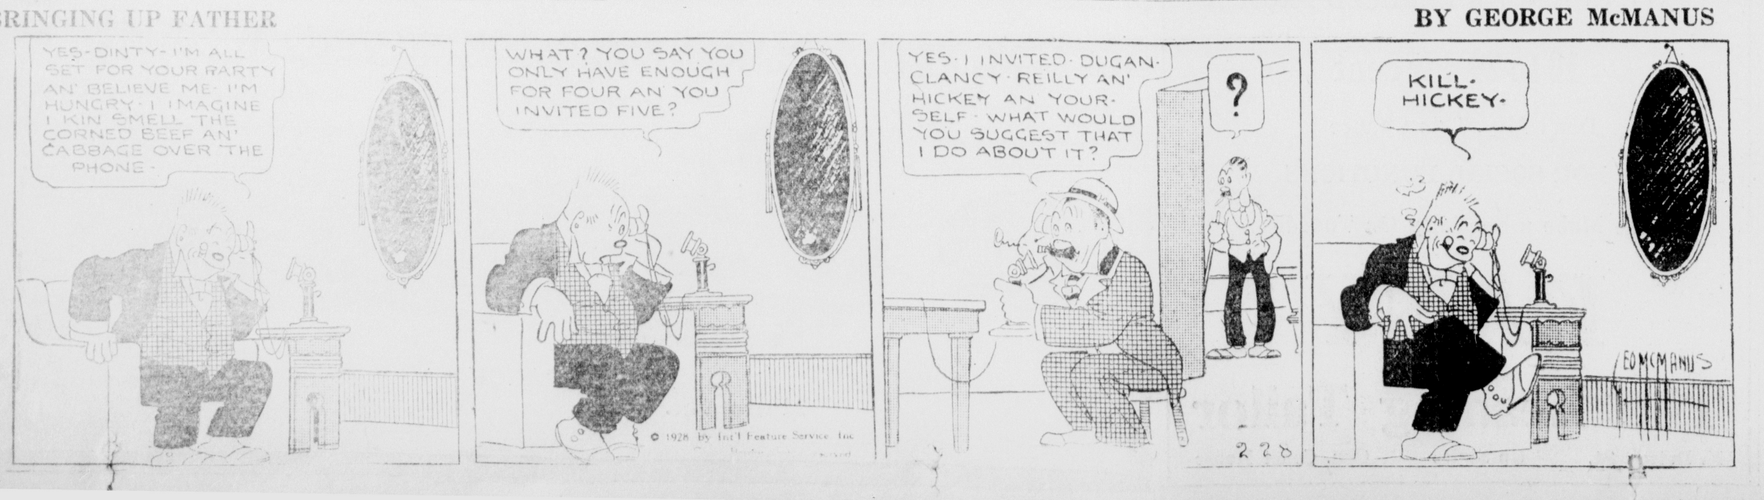

The condenser was not deliberately invented. Nobody knew what the capacity effect was until it was observed accidentally. Then it was noticed and named, and later men found out how it could be repeated. Nobody knew what regeneration was until it accidentally happened, was observed and then repeated. The fellow who first put 110 volts alternating current upon the plate of a tube probably had no idea of the consequences. In such a way it was discovered that the tube acts as a rectifier.

The other day R. T. Hurley, ignition expert of a motor meter company, observed that a spark plug acts as a miniature spark transmitting radio station, providing radiation that interferes with transmission or reception of radio aboard an airplane. As a result, experts now are busy on a plug with a rectifying quality incorporated, so as to prevent radio disturbance. Engineers believe that the change will make unnecessary the cumbersome grounded ignition shielding. These developments in the making of spark plugs probably will reduce their cost and improve their operation.

A radio engineer, in talking with some fellow workers, remarked: "Radio isn't being developed faster because most of us are following beaten paths. The fellows who do most for radio from now on, are the ones who forget the work of recent years and try something different."

The moral is: keep your eyes open.

BRINGING UP FATHER — BY GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

The thing called luck continues to be the biggest factor in the elevation of this woman or that man to the film nobility. All those stories telling of the hopeless obstacles faced by the movie-struck youth who descends upon a film studio uninvited are issued with the best of intentions, but generally they fall somewhat short of the truth.

The chances against the average aspirant for screen glory being picked out of the mob for leading roles are considerable, but not as great as the well-meaning magnates and their hirelings declare in the appeals, with which they futilely attempt to dam the flow of the ambitious to Hollywood.

* * *

Furthermore, the migration of large numbers of American youths to filmland is necessary. If suddenly this flow of raw material were to cease, the movie makers would be confronted with a talent famine. The movies have gone far, but they still have to draw most of their raw material from the mobs who knock at their gates. The flow of movie-struck boys and girls in Hollywood does result in big crops of heartaches, in spoiled lives and worse; but also it swirls a fortunate minority into fame and fortune.

* * *

Take, for instance, Margaret Mann. For years this gray-haired mother was an extra. She underwent endless hardships to pursue a career in the movies. Then something of a miracle happened. From many of her type, she was chosen for the leading role in "Four Sons," a sure-fire "mother picture." Now she belongs to the film nobility. Or take Lane Chandler. A year ago he was a guide in Yellowstone National park. Now he's Clara Bow's leading man.

* * *

Or Nancy Carroll, a little Irish girl from New York's East Side. She was just one of thousands of faces when Anne Nichols glanced out a studio window, glimpsed her, and decided she was the type of "Rosemary" in the movie "Abie's Irish Rose." Now she is playing opposite Richard Dix. Or Gary Cooper, a former cowhand in Montana. Paramount needed a "western star" to succeed Jack Holt. They gave film tests to all the likely-looking men they could find on the lot, and Cooper was chosen. After two machine-made "westerns," 'they used him in "Wings" and some program releases. The public, which has a voice, major or minor, in such matters, judged Gary suitable star material. So now he's teaming with Fay Wray in romances intended to attract the fans who like Banky-Colman and Garbo-Gilbert pictures.

Doris Dawson has decided to lend her beauty and charm to the great uplift of the movies. Doris is quite an athlete and sports were her hobby until the films beckoned.

SLUTZ WILL SPEAK OVER STATION W L W ON FRIDAY, MARCH 2

A radio program of special appeal to mothers and fathers will be broadcast at 7 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) Friday night, March 2, over station WLW, at Cincinnati, when Professor Frank D. Slutz, Dayton, famous educator and youth expert, will talk on "The Boy and Girl Problems As It Confronts the American Home Today."

Sharing the program with Prof. Slutz will be Marjorie Squires, contralto and formerly soloist with the New York Symphony and the Cincinnati symphony.

The program Friday night and the second talk by Prof. Slutz at the same hour on Friday, March 16, are in the way of an experiment. Whether the programs are made a weekly feature will depend upon the number of letters received by WLW from parents and boys and girls expressing a desire that they be continued.

Write to Prof. Slutz, in care of Radio Station WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio and then tune in that station at 7 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) Friday night, March 2 and listen for the answer as it will be given by Prof Slutz. You don't need to sign your name to your questions.

However, if you like the programs by Prof. Slutz and want them to be given every week, then write a letter to Fred Smith, studio director of WLW, Cincinnati and ask that they be made weekly. If enough letters are received it is possible that WLW will arrange to broadcast questions and answers by Prof. Slutz every week.

Those who contend that radio stations do not dare to offer their microphones for the airing of controversial subjects will enjoy a pleasant surprise by tuning in Prof. Slutz.

SMOKING RULES FOR ANTIOCH GIRLS ARE MODIFIED BY VOTE

Modification of smoking rules for women at Antioch College was approved this week by the Community Council of Division "A" of the college.

Since the new and more liberal regulations have already been confirmed by Division "B", they will become effective when passed upon by the executive board of the school.

No objections are anticipated from the executive board, since the set of new regulations, providing for smoking privileges for Antioch co-eds within certain limits, definitely stated, has the backing of student opinion and were drawn up by both students and faculty members.

The rules declare: "Antioch girls do not smoke publicly, either in the village or on the campus, nor in any place where it would be inconsiderate or in bad taste; they do not smoke in faculty homes nor college buildings, except in a smoking room to be designated by the women's committee, and in the tearoom after 9 p. m.; they do not smoke at League Lodge in Dayton."

Present smoking rules provide no smoking privileges for girl students either on the campus or in the village of Yellow Springs. These rules, however, are a modification of the original ruling and were obtained only after two years of agitation on the part of students. The original rule was to the effect that Antioch women do not smoke under any circumstances.

Questions relating to the interpretation of the new rules will be referred to the women's committee, composed of members of the faculty as well as girl students.

The rules are recommended for two years.

SEEK KIDNAPED GIRL

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 27. — An extensive police search was under way here and in Denver today for Ramona Wells, 19-year-old Colorado Springs girl who was kidnaped last night at the point of a gun by a former sweetheart, William Zeigler, 23, according to police.

Farm Notes

CUT OAT ACREAGE

With an average yield of forty bushels to the acre, 20 per cent less land planted to oats this spring probably would supply the domestic needs of the United States, it is suggested by the rural economics department of the Ohio State University. The suggestion is based upon the report of oats production and consumption in the state and in the United States, last year.

There was a very slight reduction last year in the Ohio oats acreage, as compared with that of the previous year. Yet, the unusually low average acre-yield of thirty-two bushels to the acre produced sixty million bushels.

In 1926 there were grown in Ohio, seventy-five million bushels of oats, on about the same acreage which produced sixty million last year. Last year the oats production in the entire country was about 5 per cent below the 1926 production, and a low carry over has reduced the present supply to about 10 per cent below what it was this time last year.

But the decline in the number of horses on farms has reduced the requirement for oats by 100 to 150 million bushels since 1919, and it seems that this year's small crop is about sufficient for domestic needs. The advantage of growing the adequate crop on one-fifth less land, is obvious.

A DOG BANDIT

EAST ORANGE, N. J. —Mrs. A. V. Kennedy reported to police that she walked along Tremont Avenue when a dog came up behind her, snatched her purse out of her hand and ran off with it. The purse contained money and a gold watch. Mrs. Kennedy did not know what breed of dog it was, but police are inclined to believe that it may have been a watch dog, or maybe a Scotch terrier, since so obviously he displayed a sense of money value.

70% of the day's work
is crowded into 4 hours!

Yet morning listlessness is a frequent handicap, say school and business heads

School authorities declare children's progress is too often delayed by "draggy" mornings and urge that more attention be paid to breakfasts

Today there is an entirely new understanding of how important a part is played in school or business progress by the kind of breakfast you eat.

In schools, they put the heaviest strain on children in the forenoon. 70% of the hard studies are crowded into the morning session, national investigations prove. And heads of big industrial organizations say the heavy load in the working world falls in the same period.

Educators, business heads and leading editors are therefore urging better preparation for these strenuous hours. They say that "draggy" mornings, whether in school-room or office, are a serious handicap that should be prevented by thoughtful attention to balanced breakfasts.

For real, sustaining nourishment, food experts agree that oatmeal has unique values. They call it the best balanced of the cereals; because it supplies not only energy —but tissue-building material, vitamins and minerals! And bran in its most appetizing form!

Your own sense of taste will show you what a difference there is in oatmeal flavor. If you have never tasted Quick Mother's Oats you will notice instantly its rich, satisfying quality. "This tastes better, somehow," the children will exclaim. And like thousands of others, you will never again be satisfied with any less-carefully-milled oats.

Quick Mother's Oats is made from the cream of the oat crop, milled by skillful methods developed through 50 years of experience. And now you can get it in two forms: the regular kind, and Quick Mother's Oats which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes. Now this hot, nourishing breakfast can be prepared faster than toast!

Start tomorrow to see how this breakfast "stands by" you through the whole morning.

SLUTZ WILL SPEAK OVER STATION W L W ON FRIDAY, MARCH 2

A radio program of special appeal to mothers and fathers will be broadcast at 7 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) Friday night, March 2, over station WLW, at Cincinnati, when Professor Frank D. Slutz, Dayton, famous educator and youth expert, will talk on "The Boy and Girl Problems As It Confronts the American Home Today."

Sharing the program with Prof. Slutz will be Marjorie Squires, contralto and formerly soloist with the New York Symphony and the Cincinnati symphony.

The program Friday night and the second talk by Prof. Slutz at the same hour on Friday, March 16, are in the way of an experiment. Whether the programs are made a weekly feature will depend upon the number of letters received by WLW from parents and boys and girls expressing a desire that they be continued.

Write to Prof. Slutz, in care of Radio Station WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio and then tune in that station at 7 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) Friday night, March 2 and listen for the answer as it will be given by Prof Slutz. You don't need to sign your name to your questions.

However, if you like the programs by Prof. Slutz and want them to be given every week, then write a letter to Fred Smith, studio director of WLW, Cincinnati and ask that they be made weekly. If enough letters are received it is possible that WLW will arrange to broadcast questions and answers by Prof. Slutz every week.

Those who contend that radio stations do not dare to offer their microphones for the airing of controversial subjects will enjoy a pleasant surprise by tuning in Prof. Slutz.

SMOKING RULES FOR ANTIOCH GIRLS ARE MODIFIED BY VOTE

Modification of smoking rules for women at Antioch College was approved this week by the Community Council of Division "A" of the college.

Since the new and more liberal regulations have already been confirmed by Division "B", they will become effective when passed upon by the executive board of the school.

No objections are anticipated from the executive board, since the set of new regulations, providing for smoking privileges for Antioch co-eds within certain limits, definitely stated, has the backing of student opinion and were drawn up by both students and faculty members.

The rules declare: "Antioch girls do not smoke publicly, either in the village or on the campus, nor in any place where it would be inconsiderate or in bad taste; they do not smoke in faculty homes nor college buildings, except in a smoking room to be designated by the women's committee, and in the tearoom after 9 p. m.; they do not smoke at League Lodge in Dayton."

Present smoking rules provide no smoking privileges for girl students either on the campus or in the village of Yellow Springs. These rules, however, are a modification of the original ruling and were obtained only after two years of agitation on the part of students. The original rule was to the effect that Antioch women do not smoke under any circumstances.

Questions relating to the interpretation of the new rules will be referred to the women's committee, composed of members of the faculty as well as girl students.

The rules are recommended for two years.

Farm Notes

CUT OAT ACREAGE

With an average yield of forty bushels to the acre, 20 per cent less land planted to oats this spring probably would supply the domestic needs of the United States, it is suggested by the rural economics department of the Ohio State University. The suggestion is based upon the report of oats production and consumption in the state and in the United States, last year.

There was a very slight reduction last year in the Ohio oats acreage, as compared with that of the previous year. Yet, the unusually low average acre-yield of thirty-two bushels to the acre produced sixty million bushels.

In 1926 there were grown in Ohio, seventy-five million bushels of oats, on about the same acreage which produced sixty million last year. Last year the oats production in the entire country was about 5 per cent below the 1926 production, and a low carry over has reduced the present supply to about 10 per cent below what it was this time last year.

But the decline in the number of horses on farms has reduced the requirement for oats by 100 to 150 million bushels since 1919, and it seems that this year's small crop is about sufficient for domestic needs. The advantage of growing the adequate crop on one-fifth less land, is obvious.

A DOG BANDIT

EAST ORANGE, N. J. —Mrs. A. V. Kennedy reported to police that she walked along Tremont Avenue when a dog came up behind her, snatched her purse out of her hand and ran off with it. The purse contained money and a gold watch. Mrs. Kennedy did not know what breed of dog it was, but police are inclined to believe that it may have been a watch dog, or maybe a Scotch terrier, since so obviously he displayed a sense of money value.

70% of the day's work is crowded into 4 hours!

Yet morning listlessness is a frequent handicap, say school and business heads

School authorities declare children's progress is too often delayed by "draggy" mornings and urge that more attention be paid to breakfasts

Today there is an entirely new understanding of how important a part is played in school or business progress by the kind of breakfast you eat.

In schools, they put the heaviest strain on children in the forenoon. 70% of the hard studies are crowded into the morning session, national investigations prove. And heads of big industrial organizations say the heavy load in the working world falls in the same period.

Educators, business heads and leading editors are therefore urging better preparation for these strenuous hours. They say that "draggy" mornings, whether in school-room or office, are a serious handicap that should be prevented by thoughtful attention to balanced breakfasts.
